BIG SEA-AIR CLASH REPORTED

Battle Rages In Mediterranean

By The Canadian Press

A running sea-air battle, which on the face of Axis claims—the only information available thus far—seems to have stemmed from a major strategical move of the Allies, was being fought today at Italy's Mediterranean doorstep between the Italian island of Sardinia and Tunis.

The battle, as Rome had recounted so far, moved eastward like a swirling tropical storm through the narrows between the Italian islands of Sardinia and Sicily, on one side, and the coast of French Africa, about 100 miles away, on the other.

The Italians mentioned two convoys, identifying them as British, but told of attacking only one. The newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia said it consisted of about 30 ships, including two aircraft carriers, a battleship, four cruisers, 10 destroyers and from 12 to 14 transports—the largest convoy Britain ever sent into the Mediterranean.

CLAIM "TURNED BACK"

Evidently it had come from the Atlantic in fulfillment of a plan so urgent that it had sailed boldly into the range of planes based on the Italian islands rather than the long way around the Cape of Good Hope thence into the Mediterranean via the Suez Canal.

The Italians claimed the convoy got as far east as Sicily where it was "forced to turn back."

The location of the battle, the strength and composition given by Rome for the Allied naval force and the reckless expenditure of planes in the attack on it suggested either that Italian territory itself might be under attack or that the Allies were engaged in a great transfer of strength between Gibraltar and Suez.

The Italian high command, in a special communique, claimed that two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamships were sunk out of one of two British convoys, and a battleship, an aircraft carrier, two cruisers, one destroyer and four steamships heavily damaged.

The Italians said the convoy attacked was protected by "numerous units of the line and by two aircraft carriers." Spotting the convoy early Saturday, Italians said their scout planes later lost sight of it and the first attack was not delivered until Sunday.

"Numerous formations" of torpedo planes, bombers and fighters then struck the flotilla, the Italians asserted. They acknowledged 20 planes lost themselves and claimed shooting 15 carrier-borne planes down in flames.

"The operations were resumed in the early hours of this morning against the remaining units," the communique concluded.

Today's War Moves

The increased tempo of the fighting in southern Russia is a further indication that the Germans intend to make their main drive this summer against the Caucasus.

The present fierce assaults in the Kharkov region and on Sevastopol look like the opening stages of that offensive, which is far from being in full swing yet. Until the Germans do open the full attack, which ought not to be long delayed, there can be no possible inkling of how Russian resistance is going to fare this summer.

The fall of Sevastopol or local advances around Kharkov will not have much meaning. The Kharkov

SHIPS BLAST AT ENEMY ON LAND

Soviet Fleet Pounds Nazis At Sevastopol

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

MOSCOW, June 15—(AP)—Steaming into the fight for Sevastopol with its guns thundering, the Soviet Black Sea fleet was reported today to have brought aid to the hard-pressed land garrison by laying down a deadly barrage which took a heavy toll of the Axis assault forces.

The battles in the tight-drawn siege lines around the Crimean port and on the shell-pocked front east of Kharkov in the Ukraine continued with undiminished fury.

However, there were no further reports of German gains on either front since dispatches of yesterday which said the Germans had pushed forward in some sectors at Kharkov and turned loose a full-scale onslaught against Sevastopol in an attempt to smash the Russian defences by sheer weight of men and armor.

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 15.—(AP)—The Berlin radio broadcast a Transocean Agency claim tonight that "German formations east of Kharkov have crossed the Donets river at all important points in the course of their advance eastward." Transocean asserted this information came from "competent Berlin military quarters.

SHIPS NOT IDENTIFIED

Dispatches from the Crimean flank of the battlefront did not identify the warships whose guns were reported in action for the first time since June 5 when the new battle for Sevastopol began.

The principal units of the Black Sea fleet are the cruisers Red Crimea and Red Caucasus which played an important part earlier in the Russian recapture of Kerch and Feodosiya.

The warships previously had been engaged in maintaining a line of supply and communications for the port and naval base which has been cut off by land since last fall.

Naval infantry has been in action ashore for some time.

The Germans were reported to have bolstered their assault forces with strong reserve strength including units shifted from other fronts.

24-HOUR DAILY ASSAULT

Their former timetable of attack—from 5 a.m. to 9 p.m.—was said to have given way to 24-hour-a-day assault.

The Nazis, however, had little to show for their heavy sacrifices in either of those key battles of the coming Russian campaigns.

Jap Cruiser Sunk, Plane Carrier Hit

BALTIMORE, June 15—(AP)—United States torpedo planes sank a Japanese cruiser and scored a direct hit on an aircraft carrier of the main Japanese task force off the Aleutian islands, a telegram from Lt.-Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the army air force, to Glenn L. Martin, aircraft manufacturer, disclosed today.

In Washington, the war department declined immediate comment, although its public relations department approved use of the telegram.

Arnold's message, congratulating the Martin Company on successful use of Martin craft as torpedo planes, said three attacks had been made in the Aleutian Islands on the main Japanese force.

SGT. PILOT THOMAS M. PERCIVAL SGT. PILOT MALCOLM W. BAKKAN

Two City Airmen Ready To Fight Enemy Fliers Over Desert Sands

Two Edmonton airmen hold the honor of being members of the first Royal Canadian air force fighter squadron to move to the Middle East's theatre of war as a complete R.C.A.F. unit to help knock the Axis out of desert skies.

They are Sgt. Pilot Thomas M. Percival, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Percival, 10140 123 street, and Sgt. Pilot Malcolm W. "Bing" Bakkan, 25, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Bakkan, 11003 108 street. Mr. Percival is deputy provincial treasurer, while Mr. Bakkan works out of Edmonton on the Northern Alberta Railway.

Although many Canadians already are serving in Libya and Malta with the R.A.F., Sgt. Pilots Percival and Bakkan were among the first to go with a complete R.C.A.F. unit to the Middle East.

In the accompanying photograph, the Edmonton airmen are shown aboard ship making their second ocean-going voyage in a comparatively short space of time.

STUDIED AGRICULTURE

Sgt. Pilot Percival was born in Brandon, Man., and attended the Garneau high school. He was also a student at the Olds School of Agriculture before entering the University of Alberta to continue his study of agriculture. He interrupted his course to join the R.C.A.F. in September, 1940.

The airman is also well known in the Athabasca district, where the family resided during the time the flier's father was manager of the Athabasca branch of the Imperial bank. Sgt. Pilot Percival took an active part in school sports.

He trained at St. Catharines, Ont., Toronto, Rockliffe, Ont., and Summerside, P.E.I., where he received his wings. He went overseas in August, 1941.

Educated at Oliver and Victoria high schools, Sgt. Pilot Bakkan, who was born in Edmonton, joined the R.C.A.F. in October, 1940. He trained at Trenton, Ont., and Windsor Mills, Que., winning his wings at Dunville, Ont.

He was active in city sports, playing rugby, hockey and baseball.

Commission On Cancer Still Is In Operation

The Alberta Cancer Commission appointed by the provincial government in the spring of 1941 is still authorized to investigate and determine the curative value of any claimed cancer remedies, it was explained Monday by Premier William Aberhart.

It was pointed out by the premier that a report published last week to the effect that an order-in-council had been passed by the government rescinding the appointment of the commission was misleading.

Actually, the effect of this order passed last week is to confine the work of the commission to the investigation of cancer and not other diseases.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

Premier Aberhart's explanatory statement issued Monday in this connection follows:

"I regret that there has been some confusion caused in the public mind zby the press reports in connection with the Alberta Cancer Commission. This commission is still authorized to investigate and determine the curative value of any claimed cancer remedies.

"It should be explained that on November 27, 1941, an order-in-council was passed appointing members of the Cancer Commission a commission pursuant to the provision of the Public Inquiries Act with full authority to investigate the curative value of the Koch treatment for all diseases.

"Actual effect of this order was to widen the powers of this commission.

"After receiving reports and considering the situation, the government deemed it advisable to confine the work of the Cancer Commission to its original purpose. Hence an order-in-council has been passed rescinding the enlarged powers of the commission.

"The Cancer Commission, therefore, is still authorized to carry on all investigation to determine the curative value of claimed cancer remedies.

NO CURTAILMENT

"The government has no intention of curtailing its program in its fight against the ravages of cancer."

Members of the commission are Dr. W. A. R. Kerr, chairman, and Dr. John K. Fife and J. B. Corbett, all of Edmonton; and Miss A. Keith, Vermilion.

Candia, Taranto Bombed By R.A.F.

CAIRO, June 15.—(AP)—The airdrome at Candia, Crete, and the big Italian naval base of Taranto on the Italian home peninsula were raided Saturday night, a British air communique said today. Four British aircraft are missing, but two of their crewmen were saved.

General Council C.M.A. In Session

JASPER, June 15—(CP)—The general council of the Canadian Medical Association was in session today preparing reports from all departments for submission to general sittings of the annual convention.

The report of the nominations committee and the conference of the medical secretaries of the association were scheduled for tonight.

Annual business meetings of the Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan divisions of the C.M.A. will be held tomorrow night.

One hundred doctors were attending the general council meetings but more than 900 are expected to be present for the general sessions.

British Troops Attacking Enemy Units In Libya

CAIRO, June 15.—(AP)—The British 8th army, after fighting a furious battle with German armored forces attempting to drive a coastal wedge between Tobruk and its western defences at Ain El Gazala, is "counter-attacking vigorously," general headquarters announced today.

"Heavy fighting continues," the communique said, indicating that despite the counter thrusts of Lt.-Gen. Neil Ritchie's forces, the Germans still are pressing strongly.

"The enemy is attacking our positions near Acroma in an attempt to isolate the troops remaining in the Ain El Gazala salient," it said.

Ain El Gazala is 40 miles west of Tobruk.

"The battle has become fluid, with the Germans attacking northward from Trigh Capuzzo and our mobile forces in turn attacking their rear from the south," the communique added.

The German air force has opened an assault on British supply lines extending nearly 200 miles back into Egypt, an air headquarters communique reported.

The air attacks, centred on Matruh, the railhead 10 miles east of the Egypt-Libya border, Anuka, a station 40 miles farther east, apparently were part of an attempt to hamper the movement of British supplies and reinforcements to the desert front.

The communique said they were unsuccessful.

Third Great Sea Battle Is Brewing

By FRANK TREMAINE

PEARL HARBOR, June 15. — (BUP) — The third great naval-aerial battle of the Pacific war is brewing in the foggy reaches of the North Pacific where United Nations forces are striking at Japanese who have toeholds on the remote Attu and Kiska islands, well-informed quarters understood today.

There was no indication yet whether the Japanese had attempted to press farther eastward but it was believed certain that Allied planes were striking at them.

Informants here believed the Japanese had sent a naval force and a transport-borne troop force to the Aleutian zone, and that at least one aircraft carrier was included, with a cruiser-destroyer escort and several transports.

It was known publicly here that the United Nations has considerable air strength based in the Alaskan area.

SIMULTANEOUS THRUST

It was believed that if the Japanese provoked a new engagement in the Northern Pacific, they would be likely to make a simultaneous thrust in the central of Southern Pacific, from bases in the Caroline, Mariana and Marshall islands, in an attempt to split United Nations forces.

If they attempted to push farther east in the Aleutian chain toward Alaska, informants said, they would provoke a new major battle which would probably develop into a hide and seek engagement due to the prevalent fogs.

The Japanese are thoroughly familiar with the area, due to their years long "fishing" operations in which naval officers in disguise took part in order to obtain information.

It was agreed here that Japanese possession of Attu and Kiska would present little threat to Allied bases to the east.

But if the United Nations launched an offensive, Japanese naval forces would be supported by airplanes based on the Kuriles islands which stretch down toward Japan.

Well informed quarters believed it unlikely that the situation would remain static and that if the Japanese did not press eastward, the United Nations would push westward in an attack that might involve an attempt to smash the Kuriles bases in preparation for the first real blow against Japan itself.

PEACE PLANS MENACED

Decline Of American Congress Seen As Threat To Democracy

By BRUCE HUTCHISON
Vancouver Sun Political Writer

This is the ninth in a series by Mr Hutchison, who has been in Washington surveying the American war scene.—EDITOR.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—The most obvious and the most alarming fact in the political democracy of the United States is the decline of Congress. In the end, all the great plans of the government for the post-war world, perhaps all the hopes of our civilization, depend upon the Congress. It can make them good or it can reject and ruin them as it did in 1920.

Yet this all-powerful body is evidently regarded by most of the American people with distrust and by many of them with contempt.

The evidence of this is everywhere, in the editorials of newspapers, in the fierce jibes of columnists, in the attitude of government officials and in the whipped look of Congress itself. This on the eve of the most important Congressional election in modern times—and election, next autumn, which will choose the men who will dispose of the next peace settlement.

ROOSEVELT'S PLANS

All the House of Representatives and a third of the Senate will go before the people in the autumn. The parallel between this situation and that of 1918 is too clear to be reassuring. In that year Woodrow Wilson asked the people to return a Democratic Congress so that he might submit his peace program to a friendly body. The people re-

LACKS CAPACITY

Nazis' Days Numbered If Goering Succeeds Fuehrer Adolf Hitler

This dispatch is based on heretofore secret notes made by the British United Press Central European manager during 12 years in Germany. He has returned to the United States in an exchange of American-German internees.—EDITOR.

By FREDERICH C. OECHSNER
British United Press Central European Manager

When Hitler's designated heir, Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering, is called upon to take command, the Nazis' days of power will be numbered.

Goering lacks the capacity for the job.

His one big venture into the German economics front, as director of the four-year plan, was inauspicious. Hitler picked him for it because of his organizing ability. He has tremendous drive and Hitler gets the most out of him with the slogan, "I do not expect the possible from you: I expect the impossible."

EXCLUSIVE

He has some friends among the economists, among them Walther Funk, president of the Reichsbank, but he knows nothing about economics. Hitler doesn't either, for that matter, but Hitler knows how to adapt what his economists produce to the total war effort.

Outwitted By Von Ribbentrop

On the political front, Goering is consistently outwitted by Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop, his deadliest enemy.

Joseph Goebbels, the expert if despicable boss of the propaganda front, has been feuding with Goering for years over a matter of Hitler's favoritism.

Only the army stands behind Goering, while Ribbentrop, through his close association with Heinrich Himmler, probably could count on the far-flung gestapo and the SS Elite Guazwerps of some 700,000 men for considerable support in the event of a clash.

Goering's closest friends are the air ministry generals—Hugo Sperrle, Albert Kesselring and Gerhard Milch. He spends most of his time at his eastern front air headquarters and probably would relish a little action himself—he is reported to have flown over London with his air raiders last year—but his greater destiny forbids it.

INCONCEIVABLE AS RULER

Under normal circumstances, without lesser Nazis trying to stab him in the back, Goering might be able to run the Reich. But a picture of him keeping the country together for the prosecution of the war, or recovery from it, in the face of Nazi feuds and inner struggles, even with the army's support, is almost inconceivable.

Goering is resplendent, convivial and realistic. Running the Luftwaffe is a full-time job for him. The air force is his pride and joy, to the exclusion of other phases of the Nazi war effort. It is said in high Nazi circles that he never came nearer to blows with Ribbentrop than during the Norwegian campaign when his fliers had to take over a sea-borne invasion attempt on short notice, and suffered severe losses in consequence.

In that instance, British submarines pierced the German mine fields, entered the Skagerrak and had sunk three German transports by April 9, 1940, the day before the scheduled landing in Norway. The submarines later sank three German cruisers, including the Bluecher, and got into Islofjord, making it necessary for Goering's air force to go to the rescue.

GOERING VS. RIBBENTROP

Oslo itself was taken by air-borne troops, including a hastily-dispatched military band. Goering blamed Ribbentrop for the losses, asserting that the foreign minister induced Hitler to launch the expedition without adequate preparation. He is said still to hold Ribbentrop responsible for the death of every German flier lost in the campaign.

If an eventual Nazi blowup comes, it probably will be Goering vs. Ribbentrop, and Goering as leader, succeeding Hitler, would be the lesser evil.

Uncle Of President Roosevelt To Survey Proposed Rail Line

WINNIPEG, June 15. — (CP) — Frederic A. Delano, chairman of the United States National Resources Council Planning Board at Washington, and uncle of President Roosevelt, passed through Winnipeg today en route to survey the proposed Alaska railway and highway routes.

Mr. Delano stated he will investigate and submit reports on the advisability of building a railway line from Prince George, B.C., through to Alaska, and of constructing two new Alaska highways.

Young Germans Get First Lessons On 'Infalibility' Of Hitler At Tender Age

What is happening to German youth under Nazi rule is described by Angus Thuermer, just returned from internment in Germany.—EDITOR.

By ANGUS THUERMER

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—In a very real sense the words of the poet Woodsworth, "the shades of the prison house begin to close around the growing boy," can be seen in Nazi Germany today.

The modern "prison house" into which the young German nowadays is sent is the wall-less but confining structure of the Nazi Youth Organization. At the age of 10, unasked himself, and without the consent of his parents, the youngster begins a training term of eight years.

Under the tutelage of ardent Nazi party members, he is taught to believe in Hitler as an infallible leader, and that to die for Nazi Germany is the noblest lot that can befall a young Nazi. He learns to march. He carries a pack on his back like a soldier. He takes part in parades, gym tournaments, shooting matches and mass rallies.

MINDS MOULDED

To his meetings come Nazi warriors to boast of their prowess in battle. The pliable mind of youth is moulded by every subtle means known to the modern science of propaganda.

And the eight-year "term" in the Nazi intellectual "prison" takes.

In the young Nazi is firmly imbedded the idea that the Nazi world is the only world, and the German "volk" the only "volk."

But the now-passionate Nazi has not completed his instruction. In fact the Nazi is never "paroled" to ramble as he sees fit in the philosophies of the world.

At the age of 18 he is due for six months in the labor service. For half a year he bends his back over a shovel, building highways or fortifications. After six months at labor, the youth is ready to be inducted into the armed forces. Normally he would serve two years' training in arms, but today some of the youngsters already have served five years.

After the regular service in the army, when and if he does get out, he can go to university or a technical school.

MANY JOIN HANDS

After having done their student work, finished their term in the army, many join the S.A. and some superheated Nazis join the Elite guards of Hitler, the S.S.

The S.A. has been designated by Hitler as that organization which shall concern itself with the maintenance of military spirit and training in the German civilian population. Periodically members of the S.A. are called out to practice again the art of hand-grenade throwing and other such manoeuvres.

And so the training continues—the German boy entered the Hitler Youth at the age of 10. At the age of 30 when he is a Ph.D., he is still marching, shouting and shooting for Hitler — regardless of whether he wants to.

When the Nazi youth is 12 years old he goes into a "super-Nazi" school, which is separate from the public school system. These "super" schools, the national political educational institutes, are run on a strictly eyes-front, heels-together brand of Prussian military discipline.

The classroom films and lectures in these institutes are strictly taught propaganda for the training of military minded youngsters who will fight the Reich's wars.

VIVID PRESENTATION

"The teacher who has the future pilots in his class," the Frankfurter Zeitung wrote, "must have the ability to present his material in a vivid manner. That shows itself, for example, in the study of Latin where the teacher must bring the main interest of the student's reading of the Caesarian battles on the strategy involved in them, leaving the grammar to be thoroughly done, but somewhat as a side issue."

There is no doubt that that any blitz panzer successes that Hitler might hope for in Russia this summer must depend partly upon the help of swift motorized squadrons of schoolboys, his motorized "Reichs labor service" squadrons.

In the first phases of the eastern campaign these 17 and 18-year-old youths, attached to panzer divisions and armies, raced close on the heels of the battling tank units, and far ahead of the advance guard of the training foot troops.

Literally, they have carried a spade in one hand and a rifle in the other.

In eastern Poland the new units feverishly worked widening forest pathways so bulky panzers could assemble on the Russian border posed for the planned offensive into Russian territory.

As winter froze the German offensive, labor service youths grabbed snow shovels and took command over platoons of Russian workers forced into road service.

Allied Chiefs Out-Smarted Japanese Navy

By FRANCIS L. McCARTHY

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, June 15.—(BUP)—Allied military intelligence outsmarted the Japanese and prepared the way for the Allied triumph in the Coral Sea, which in turn led to the victory of Midway island, it was revealed today.

With the announcement in detail at Washington and Pearl Harbor of the Coral Sea and Midway operations, authorities here permitted the disclosure that due to effective intelligence work the Allies knew two weeks in advance that Japanese concentrations were being effected off northeastern Australia.

The result was that the Allied naval, aerial and land forces were fully prepared and that in the Coral Sea battle, like that off Midway, they caught the enemy in a trap.

It was emphasized that the Allied naval forces were infinitely inferior in power to those of the enemy.

But advance knowledge of Japanese plans and dispersions, due to efficient intelligence and reconnaissance, permitted the Allied forces to strike swift and unexpectedly.

Informants said it was impossible to give too much praise to the bombing planes from Australian advanced land bases which carried out incessant reconnaissance patrols and attacks and kept the enemy busy for a week while the naval forces were assembling to take the brunt of the attack.

Decline Of U.S. Congress Real Threat

acted promptly to the President's appeal by electing Republicans. It was a Congress unfriendly to the President which rejected the Versailles Treaty and the League of Nations.

If the wrong kind of Congress is elected this year all Mr. Roosevelt's majestic plans for a new world might be smothered by political conspiracy, as were the plans of his old leader and mentor, Mr. Wilson. Of course, Mr. Roosevelt is an abler politician than Mr. Wilson and will not make the mistake of issuing a partisan appeal to the electors. He has said already that he is not interested in the party stripe of any candidate, but only in his attitude towards the war.

The polls of public opinion indicate that the President's party is gaining steadily in strength against the Republicans, whose black record on foreign policy is becoming known to the people. But much can happen before autumn, and until the ballots are counted no post-war program can be considered safe even in its inception.

What is wrong with the Congress? In the first place, its record is wrong. From the beginning of the war it showed a total inability to grasp the character of the struggle or the danger to America. Long after the President, his cabinet, the leading figures in the public service, the press and most of the people had realized what was happening to the world Congress still appeared to be operating in a vacuum.

Thus it held up the amendment to the Neutrality Act for months over the President's protest. In the House of Representatives there was obstruction against the second lease-lend appropriation two weeks before Pearl Harbor, and a band of isolationists was still saying that America could not be endangered. From the start of the whole lend-lease program, on which Britain depended for its existence, was bitterly fought by the Congressional isolationists, who cried out for a "negotiated peace." Two months before Pearl Harbor, while the Japanese were completing their plans of attack, it was only by one vote that the House agreed to maintain the draft army instead of sending it home. This is the body to which the tasks of war and the plans for peace must be submitted.

MONOLITHIC STATE

The thoughtful American citizen begins to wonder if the whole form of his government is undergoing some fundamental change. He sees the real power of the nation moving away from the legislative wing and concentrating in the executive. The delicate structure of checks and balances which the Founding Fathers devised to prevent one man becoming too powerful, definitely is not working. Never has any American possessed the powers of Mr. Roosevelt before this war and during it.

That is partly due, of course, to two factors—the outstanding ability and popularity of the President and the crisis in which the nation has lived since 1933. But does this explain the decline of Congress? Some good thinkers assert that it does not. They see their country evolving into a monolithic state under an all-powerful executive. They see the current economic revolution reflecting itself in a political revolution which tends more and more towards the rule of one man.

If there be any truth in this theory, it is tragic that the men who must denounce the growing power of the President are the very isolationists who have demonstrated beyond question that they are unworthy of any power at all.

NEW EFFORTS

Anyway, most Americans would agree with the verdict of that competent observer, Raymond Clapper, who writes: "As a force in our government Congress is sliding downhill. It is endangered not by the press nor by the executive branch, but by its own shallow incompetency. The ignorance and provincialism of Congress renders it incapable of meeting the needs of modern government. Consequently the centre of gravity has shifted toward the executive branch.

There is no permanent hope for democracy in such a shift. The only safety for democracy rests in a powerful law-making body. The British nations recognize this by making their governments subject at all times to the Legislature and many Americans wish now that their constitution had adopted the same principle. Even in the British countries the Legislature is generally at a low ebb — certainly in Britain and Canada. Here is a danger signal for our democracy which we may ignore at our peril.

In the United States, where the decline of the Legislature is most marked, strong efforts are being made to revive it by electing a better Congress next autumn. The whole post-war settlement, since Congress must ultimately approve it, may well hang on the result. The continued existence of parliamentary democracy in the United States certainly will depend on the ability of the American people to produce a Legislature able to share with the executive the unprecedented responsibilities of the next few years.

Canada's Arms Output Exceeds British Hopes

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—British expectations for war munitions from Canada have been vastly exceeded by deliveries, Rt. Hon. Oliver Lyttelton, British minister of supply, said today in an address to a joint Canadian Club and Rotary Club luncheon.

In terms of money Canada's munitions production in 1942 would be twice that of 1941.

Canada was producing large guns and small arms. Many plants operated at twice their rated capacity. Canadian aircraft production was now 147 per cent of what it was at the end of 1941 and the planes were of the very highest quality.

LAUDS CANADA'S ARMY

Mr. Lyttelton said he had seen the Canadian army in England. Canadians had reason to be proud of its morale and efficiency and of the ingenuity and resource of the commander (Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton).

The time would come, Mr. Lyttelton said, when the Canadian expeditionary force would write a page in history of which Canada and the mother country would be proud.

Turning again to production he said Britain now could look to the production of the North American continent as a single unit. Only very recently had United States production passed that of Britain and Canada.

CAN'T BE STOPPED

In the United States production had reached such a state that the hum of machines could be felt—and nothing could stop the rapid increase.

The future would bring double or treble the present output, the production minister predicted.

"I am quite confident that the combined production of Britain and the United States in aircraft far exceeds that of the Axis powers," he said.

The time had come when a policy of greater publicity could be adopted in regard to production.

The German people could look forward to far worse raids than those they had recently experienced.

LUXURY CUT DOWN

Of a recent visit to Detroit, he said:

"I came away with a conviction we had these fellows (the Axis) licked."

The resolution and enterprise of Britain had flowered under danger. The British people had not only won spectacular battles but denied themselves many things they had come to consider necessary. Luxury production had been ruthlessly cut down.

Less essential production was cut by 30 to 35 per cent to release workers for essential industries.

Clothes rationing released 450,000 workers for vital jobs. Every man and woman was conscripted for the armed services for industry.

"We have taken men from highly paid jobs in light industry and put them back in the mine at lower wages," he said.

More than 60 per cent of the total national income is being expended on war, said Mr. Lyttleton after an outline of British war production.

This, he thought, was getting close to the maximum possible.

Italian Executed For Violations Of Food Regulations

BERNE, June 15.—(AP)—Fascist newspapers received here Sunday gave headline prominence to Italy's first execution for violation of the country's food laws. Case of the 22-year-old youth, put to death by shooting in the back, was complicated by the murder of the policeman who attempted to arrest him. The youth was charged with the illegal sale of flour.

Will Not Exact Back-Breaking Lend-Lease Pay

By H. O. THOMSON

WASHINGTON, June 15. — (BUP)—President Roosevelt, reporting that America's "reservoir of resources is now approaching the flood stage", today virtually assured the United Nations receiving lend-lease supplies that the United States would not exact back-breaking payments after the war.

"The real costs of the war cannot be measured, nor compared, nor paid for in money," he told congress in his quarterly report on lend-lease operations. "They must and are being met in blood and toil."

REPORT HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights of his report included:

1. Lend-lease aid extended through May totaled $4,497,000,000 in goods and services. . . . "We are now making aid available at a monthly rate equivalent to $8,000,000,000 a year."

2. "The assistance we have rendered to date represents 12 per cent of our entire war effort."

3. "The battle of production is on the way to being won. . . . The battle of distribution is in its critical phase."

4. ". . . Lend-lease is no longer one-way. Those who have been receiving lend-lease aid . . . have taken the initiative in reciprocating. American troops on Australian and British soil are being fed and housed and equipped in part out of Australian and British supplies and weapons . . ."

5. ". . . The major benefit we will receive for our lend-lease aid will be the defeat of the Axis."

TO AVOID MISTAKES

In a special chapter of the report entitled "Lend-Lease and Peace," Mr. Roosevelt reasserted his determination to "avoid the political and economic mistakes of international debt inexperience during the twenties."

". . . The financial costs of the war can and should be met in a way which will serve the needs of lasting peace and mutual economic well-being," the President's report said.

"All the United Nations are seeking maximum conversion to war production, in the light of their special resources. If each country devotes roughly the same fraction of its national production to the war, then the financial burden of war is distributed equally among the United Nations in accordance with their ability to pay. And although the nations richest in resources are able to make larger contributions, the claim of war against each is relatively the same.

NONE GROW RICH

"Such a financial distribution of the financial costs of war means that no nation will grow rich from the war efforts of its allies. The money costs of the war will fall according to the rule of equality in sacrifice, as in effort."

The President said the next step in the war against the Axis would be for "our military, industrial and shipping experts" to direct the full force of the "flood stage" war production "against the centres of enemy power."

"Great Britain and the United States have together set up expert combined bodies to do the job, in close co-operation with Russia, China and the other United Nations," he said.

"They are equipping the United Nations to fight this world-wide war on a world-wide basis. They are taking combined action to carry our men and weapons—on anything that will float or fly—to the places from which we can launch our offensive."

Manpower Crisis In Canada Now Growing Acute

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, June 15.—The Canadian manpower crisis has suddenly grown acute, it is learned from reliable sources, and several measures involving wider compulsion in the selective service law are understood to be under official consideration.

Figures are not available on the June 1 registration of unemployed but the round total in all Canada is expected to be less than 100,000, half of whom would not be employable. The national working staff, tabulated last April at 2,700,000 in the workers' registration, is almost fully employed. But several serious labor shortages exist in the war production front, notably at Arvida, Que., and Sudbury, Ont. Several of the biggest and most important industries are now short handed and special measures will be required to handle this years' farm production program, the timber cutting operations required to meet war demands, and several other vital aspects of the national production effort.

NATIONAL POLICY

Observers closely informed on labor and production data expect that national policy will develop imminently along these lines:

1—Labor-management committee will be extended throughout the industrial front to increase efficiency in out-put, cut down absenteeism and improve labor morale. Spearhead of this campaign is Elliott Little, national selective service director, whose current drive to reach maximum efficiency with existing staffs has produced a clash with production policies of the munitions and supply department. It is obvious that Mr. Little is winning his campaign, and important developments, are expected.

2—More speed must be attained in shutting down civilian production in order to meet war needs, and to release workers for war production.

3—The employment of women in industry will have to be carried to greater lengths. This raises a particularly delicate issue in view of Cardinal Villeneuve's recent letter viewing with alarm the movement of women from home to factory.

Canada has 500,000 men in uniform, 700,000 or more persons directly engaged in war production, and the rate of manpower transfers is higher than ever. Twelve thousand men a month enlist in army, 15,000 are being drafted in July, air force and navy take around 4,000 a month, the aircraft industry is hiring 2,000 workers a month, shipbuilding requires about the same intake, several other important war industries are in the same category. As Prime Minister King described it this week Canada is rapidly approaching moving towards total mobilization of manpower and total war.

The proclamation was one of seven made by as many mayors in the Montreal district today, each publicly read to the accompaniment of guards of honor and buglers, as a week-long drive for 10,000 recruits for the reserve army opened here.

A parade of all reserve units in the district is scheduled for tonight, with Maj.-Gen. H. F. G. Letson, adjutant-general of the Canadian forces, taking the salute at Phillips Square.

Unknown Number Of Airmen Killed As Bombers Crash

MACLEOD, June 15.—(CP)—Two bombing planes collided in mid-air today five miles northeast of Granum and both crashed, killing an undetermined number of Royal Canadian Air Force fliers.

Wing Commander R. F. Davenport, officer commanding No. 7 Service Flying Training school at Macleod, said he did not know how many men were aboard the planes.

A crash party and investigation party have gone to the scene.

The planes were in formation at time of the crash.

All But Four U.S. Airplanes Clear Turkey

By DANA SCHMIDT

ANKARA, June 15—(BUP)—All but four of the American planes which bombed Axis objectives on the Black sea, cleared Turkish territory on their way to their secret Middle Eastern bases, it was said authoritatively today.

Three planes reported to have landed in southern Turkey actually managed to continue over the frontier to Allied-held Syria, informants said, flying so close to the ground because of failing fuel that it was at first believed they had been forced to land on Turkish soil.

PLOESTI LIKELY TARGET

Three of the planes which took part in the first United States air raid of the war on European soil had been put under Turkish guard at the airport here and a fourth landed at Arisiye, near Izmit, 50 miles east of Istanbul.

Most well informed quarters believed that the great Ploesti oil fields of Rumania, 100 miles north of Bucharest, had been the target of the planes.

But there were continued reports also that the German held ports of Odessa and Nikolaev, on the Black Sea coast, might have been the targets.

A Turkish news agency dispatch reported that many unidentified planes had been seen over the Black Sea from Ineboli, on the Turkish north coast 180 miles from Sevastopol.

HAVE AXIS WORRIED

(The dispatch reported also that for four days buildings had been shaking at Ineboli from the blast of explosions in the Crimea. To be felt over a four-day period at a distance of 180 miles they would have to be tremendous explosions.)

Regardless of the damage done by the planes in their raid, their value from the moral aspect was beyond doubt.

Axis quarters here were most anxious after their first amazement at the news that United States planes were in action in this part of the world.

Axis agents were snooping all over Ankara and Istanbul trying to find, first of all, whence the planes came.

Jap Bombers Make Raid On Port Darwin

By BYRON C. TAVES

MELBOURNE, June 15.—(BUP)—A force of 27 Japanese bombers with strong fighter escort today subjected Port Darwin, vital Allied base on the Australian north coast, to its third major attack since Saturday but only slight damage was caused, an official communique said.

The Japanese, attempting to knock out one of the key bases from which Gen. Douglas MacArthur's promised United Nations' offensive would strike, attacked the port this afternoon after being frustrated in an earlier assault.

Brydon Taves

A communique from General MacArthur's headquarters said that there were few casualties and only insignificant damage resulting from the latest attack by the 27 bombers and escort fighters.

An enemy air fleet of about the same size attacked Port Darwin Saturday. A second attack was turned back before any bombers were able to reach the Allied base, due to the defeat of Japanese fighters which were running interference.

FOUR SHOT DOWN

Between 18 and 25 enemy Zero fighter planes leading the way for a major bombing plane fleet, were intercepted off the coast and beaten so convincingly that the bomber fleet never appeared over the coast.

Four of the enemy planes at least were downed and the remainder consumed so much gasoline in wild fighting which lasted for more than an hour, that it seemed improbable many of them reached their base.

WORLD'S GREATEST TRAVEL SYSTEM

SPEED DEMAND INCREASE DIFFICULTIES

Titanic Struggle Being Waged To Forge Alaska Road

Wild, Treacherous Country Abounds With Hazards To Strategic Northern Link

By SIGRID ARNE

FORT ST. JOHN, B.C., June 15—(AP)—The jeep is the United States army's little blitz buggy which does the seemingly impossible. It growls through mud up to its belly; it squirms up culverts and prances down ravines.

But we'd reached a point on the Alaska highway even our jeep couldn't take. We were out on the farthest stretch—a point west of the British Columbia-Alberta boundary.

The jumping off point for the highway, at the southern end, is Fort St. John, 610 miles northwest of Edmonton. It's eight days—days!—from Seattle, what with the travel troubles that come up. No white man knows much of the country beyond St. John.

We parked our jeep and took to shank's mare: Capt. Fred Middleton, Jr., army engineers; Grant Mac Donald, Associated Press photographer, and I.

TAKING FORM

Our boots sank in the black muck each step. We sucked up our feet, and sank them back in again. Ahead we could see young American army engineers sweating, cussing, praying the new road into being.

The farthest crew hacked out brush.

Just behind them—sinking shin-deep in muck—men whirred compressed-air saws through the bigger trees. The trees in the "north country" grow so thickly that it's impossible to ride horseback between them.

Every few minutes we heard the ringing cry of "T-i-m-b-e-r!" and another great silver poplar crashed through the forest. One more tree down on the race from Fort St. John to Fairbanks, Alaska—1,459 miles away.

Suddenly, there was a crescendo of shouts.

Over the newly broken road behind us churned a giant bulldozer, the huge iron grasshopper which can nudge over forests. It ricocheted in the muck, swinging like a ship in a swell.

"They'll sink if they take the right," shouted an angry sweating major. "They'll sink! Get them the blank to the left!"

Men shouted, the bulldozer's drivers must have heard. The road giant roared through the black custard sea and cleared. Another crisis had passed.

But they come every half hour on the Alaska highway.

It's rolling out now from three points: From Fort St. John north to Fort Nelson; from Whitehorse west to Fort Nelson; and both ways from Fort Nelson to meet the St. John and Whitehorse crews. Roughly the road will travel from Fort St. John to Fort Nelson, Watson Lake, Whitehorse, Fairbanks.

DEMAND FOR SPEED

It's the demand for speed that makes the problem. Everything goes on at once. There's no time for desk planning. The surveyors are only 30 miles ahead of the clearing crews. And for both of them trucks must keep rolling across treacherous muck to bring the food they eat, the machinery they work with.

The men working on the road never stop except to snatch sleep in the sunny nights of the north country. They've had no leave since the first troops arrived March 9. They'll get none.

They want more fresh meat, mosquito nets, chewing gum and more mail from home.

They sleep in pup tents, eat army field rations. They're getting thin and hard.

There's no schedule on the road. At first it was to take 18 months. Now the date of completion is a military secret.

DREAM FOR DECADES

This highway has been a dream for decades.

It's a unique international happenstance that one nation, Canada, would open wide her gates to the armed troops of another nation, the United States, and say, "Go ahead."

But the big story now is the titanic struggle between human beings and a wild, treacherous, unknown tundra.

R.C.A.F. Plane Sinks 2 Ships In Axis Convoy

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—Hudson bombers of the Royal Canadian Air Force attacked a three-ship Axis convoy off the coast of Holland last night and one plane sank two of the vessels, the air ministry announced today.

At the same time fighter planes attacked enemy airdromes and other targets in Holland and northern France in a series of cross-channel sweeps from which all the raiders returned safely.

Both sinkings off the Netherlands coast were credited to Sqdn. Ldr. W. B. Cooper of St. Petersburg, Fla., who is known to his Canadian colleagues as "Lucky Cooper."

Cooper sighted the convoy of three German ships, dropped part of his bomb load from a low level on the smallest ship, then "without waiting to see the result, he attacked the second ship, then the third and largest, for which he kept the biggest bombs."

ONLY ONE SHIP AFLOAT

"There were violent flashes," the air ministry news service said, "and when these died down only one ship was seen to be still floating."

In the fighter sweep over Holland during the night high explosives and incendiaries were dropped in the centre of a lighted airdrome used by the Germans to launch attacks on Britain. Railway yards at Abbeville in northern France and truck convoys also were attacked.

A Spitfire squadron attacked Axis shipping in the Dieppe-Le Havre area this morning. The air ministry news service said a motor launch was lft sinking and a motor minesweeper was hit.

Today's War Moves

drive presumably is to straighten the German line and rectify the damage caused by Marshal Semyon Timosnenko in his May offensive. The Germans possibly are aiming at establishing a strong line along the Donets river preliminary to the big push which would be southward towards Rostov from Kharkov and eastward towards Rostov from the Taganrog area on the Sea of Azov.

The German effort to take Sevastopol at such heavy cost could hardly be explained unless it is part of a Black Sea-Caucasus campaign. Less than a month ago an Allied military authority expressed the view that the Germans would by-pass Sevastopol and go after more important objectives.

AIR SUPREMACY

After nearly eight months of siege, the Germans have made the Black Sea naval base of little practical value to the Russians. They have decisive air supremacy in that area and the Russian fleet has been obliged to use indifferently equipped bases at the eastern end of the Black Sea, such as Batum.

But if the Germans are going to push eastward towards the Caucasus from Kerch, in conjunction with the Rostov drive farther north, it would be expedient to remove Sevastopol as a threat in the rear. To keep the strongly-fortified base immobilized would require air forces, troops and artillery needed elsewhere. The desperate effort the Germans are making indicate the importance they attach to wiping out the defenders.

A German drive for the Caucasus oil is strongly indicated as a matter of military expediency. First, the Germans need the oil, particularly the lubricants. Secondly, its loss would be keenly felt by the Russian armies. It is possible, but doubtful, that the Russians have developed their oil resources in the Ural region sufficiently to keep them going for any long time.

Possession of the Caucasus also would strike a heavy blow at Russia's route for Allied supplies through Iran. This operation would be directly linked with an attack in the Murmansk area to cripple the Arctic supply route.

ATTACK DEVELOPING

The latter attack seems to be developing, judging from German troop concentrations in the Karelian area of Finland and the repeated aerial assaults on Murmansk.

So, while it is impossible yet to guess the pattern of the summer campaign accurately, there are strong signs that it will be waged in full fury from the Arctic to the Black Sea, with the Murmansk area and the Caucasus the most important military objectives. There is little doubt, also, that the Germans will drive in force against Leningrad and Moscow.

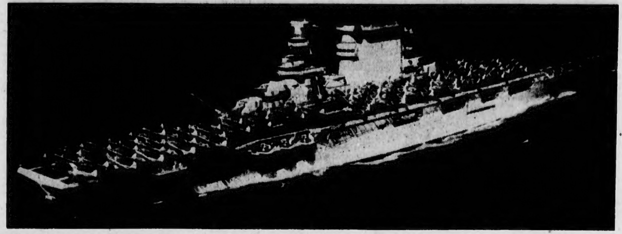
U.S. Aircraft Carrier Lost In The Battle Of The Coral Sea



The United States navy's oldest aircraft carrier, the 33,000-ton U.S.S. Lexington, was wounded by enemy bombs in the battle of Coral Sea and several hours later blew up. Naval officers considered her loss a light price to pay for the destruction of many Japanese warships in the Coral Sea engagement.

Army Doctors Will Address C.M.A. Meeting

JASPER, June 15.—(CP)—Featured by a section on military medicine involving addresses by leading doctors in the armed forces, the 73rd annual convention of the Canadian medical convention opened today at this mountain resort town 200 miles west of Edmonton. More than 900 doctors and their wives are attending the week-long meeting.

Col. J. A. MacFarlane, consultant surgeon with the Canadian army overseas, will speak at the section on military medicine June 18 and also at a general session gathering June 19.

MILITARY SPEAKERS

Other speakers at the military section are Capt. O. Rostrup of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps; Wing Cmdr. F. A. L. Mathesson of the Royal Canadian Air Force, Surgeon Lt.-Cmdr. Walter C. MacKenzie of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve and Lt.-Col A. C. Rankin, director of hygiene for the R.C.A.M.C.

Heads of the medical services of the three armed forces who arrive Wednesday are: Brigadier R. M. Gorssline, director general of medical services for the Canadian army; Air Commodore R. W. Ryan, director of medical services of the R.C.A.F., and Surgeon Captain A. McCallum, director of medical services for the Royal Canadian navy. They will speak at a luncheon Thursday and also will take part in a discussion period on military medicine.

The presidential address by Dr. Gordon S. Fahrni of Winnipeg is scheduled for June 17 when another highlight will be the Osler lecture by Dr. C. D. Parfitt of Toronto.

In conjunction with the national convention, annual meetings of the Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan divisions of the C.M.A. will be held during the week in addition to the convention' of the Federation of Medical Women of Canada.

INSURANCE PLAN

President-elect Dr. A. E. Archer of Lamont in his pre-convention message to the profession said the general council meetings June 15 and 16 "will face again the important problems raised by the present active study of health insurance and the attempt to frame a plan which may become the basis of legislation."

Dr. Archer also said that "recognizing the importance of the health insurance discussions, Thursday evening is being set aside for a discussion on this subject under the leadership of Dr. Wallace Wilson (of Vancouver)."

Sessions of the executive council began Saturday with Dr. T. H. Leggett of Ottawa presiding.

Next annual meeting of the association will be held at Montreal in June, 1943. The C.M.A. which was formed the year of confederation, 1867, has met annually with the exception of two years during the First Great War.

The executive noted a great increase in membership the past year enrolment jumping nearly 2,000 to make a total roster of almost 7,000 qualified Canadian physicians.

The committee, at the invitation of the federal government, decided to form a central advisory committee of five members who will work with all departments of the government concerned with medical aspects of the war.

JASPER, Alta., June 15.—(CP)—Dr. A. G. Nicholls of Montreal will be made the 11th honorary member of the Canadian Medical Association at sessions of the 73rd annual meeting of the organization here this week.

He is being elected to honorary membership upon his retirement from the National Executive as editor of the C.M.A. Journal, a post he held for 12 years. He will be succeeded by Dr. H. E. MacDermot, also of Montreal, who has been associate editor for the past decade.

Nazi Claim

Soldier's Diary Reveals Crumbling Nazi Morale

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—"Poor homeland," the German diary said in part, "can you offer nothing better to your sons who are roasting in Africa's heat?"

Taken from a captured Sergeant-mechanic of the Africa corps and released by the British ministry of information, the book reveals the Nazi soldier as sometimes boastful, sometimes whining, homesick, war weary and always contemptuous of his Italian allies. It suggests a slow deterioration of Nazi morale.

Written in a period from July to November, 1941, the diary noted early that "I think that if the British had a go at us now they could walk over us—we are helpless here with no motor transport."

The diarist added: "I'd like to see the blurbs they're shoving in all the newspapers about our splendid grub out here. Here we sit like birds in the wilderness and they give us food fit for owls."

"NO BREAK AGAIN"

"No break again for Sunday. . . . The whole boring war can just go hang as far as I'm concerned. . . . We started off the day again with an inoculation in the left breast, this time against cholera. If it goes on like this we shall shortly be walking medicine chests."

And later: "I've reached the stage that almost the whole company reached months ago. All pride in my health has gone."

Of the defence of Tobruk, "This plague spot of Cyrenaica," the sergeant said: "I admire the iron resolution with which the British fight on from this isolated post. It was in their power to abandon it by sea long ago."

In August the writer said: "We get it pretty bad with British planes here. The beggars are here the whole time . . . of the luftwaffe there is nothing to be seen. I think they must be away in Russia."

DIVE DOWN HOLES

"The Italians are gradually getting on my nerves. The whole livelong day these friends of ours sound the air raid alert, whether for a German, or an Italian, or a Britisher. They don't care a damn. Then they take to their heels and dive down their holes."

The last entry said that "British tanks are coming towards us."

Each Of Allies Fights 2 Wars, Kiwanians Told

CLEVELAND, June 15.—(CP)—L. W. Brockington of Ottawa, former wartime assistant to Prime Minister Mackenzie King, told the 27th Kiwanis International convention here last night:

"Today's (Flag Day) celebration is of course far more than courtesy. It is a recognition of two things, slowly but surely implanted in our conscience and consciousness. . . . First, that each one of our (United) Nations is fighting and has been fighting two wars . . . its own and somebody else's . . ."

Mr. Brockington's who said he would leave for England in a month to take a post as advisor on Empire affairs to the British ministry of information, declared: "For five years China has fought Ameria's war and our war and her own. Russia today fights Britain's war and her own. For the two most glorious years in her history, Britain fought, and still fights today war for herself and her kindred, it is true, but does anyone now doubt that she fought and fights for the world as well . . . ?

MAKES CAUSE HONORABLE

"Today, you too fight for the world and yourselves. Yes, we are all fighting somebody else's war, thank God. For that is why our cause is honorable above all causes. And that is one reason, too, why the flags of freedom, some whole, some torn, some tattered, some in shreds, flew together in this great-hearted land today.

"And the other truth we have recognized today is just this simple truth . . . as long as the flags fly together in war, we shall conquer in the sacred sign of God's fatherhood . . ."

Mr. Brockington's address was carried on the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

Speaking of America's entrance into the war, he said: "The free frontier has reached for the gun. And 130,000,000 of the freeest people of the world have made themselves the vigilantes of the world."

TRIBUTE TO BRITONS

He paid tribute to Britons "for their steadfastness, courage, and social regeneration."

Describing Canada's war eforts, Mr. Brockington said: "This is no time for national boasting, for praising our courage when the bravest little lands in the world are bleeding at the feet of tyrants. . ."

But this I can say with modesty and truth. We entered this war as grown men with clear eyes. We entered it at once—a nation of the British commonwealth, a nation of North America, realising perhaps before you did that there are no more islands or continents but only one world—God's world, and only one race—the race of men.

"But we entered the war first and last as a Canadian nation, true to the honor we inherited from Britain, true to the chivalry we inherited from France. . .

"We are with Britain and you and China and Russia and all sons of liberty, in good fortune, in ill fortune, in darkness and in light, until the glorious and triumphant end."

Hong Kong Canucks Receive Supplies

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The American Red Cross said yesterday it had been notified relief supplies are being distributed to Allied war prisoners and civilian internees in Japanese-held Hong Kong and Shanghai.

The International Red Cross committee in Geneva advised Norman H. Davis, American Red Cross chairman, that arrangements had been made to distribute about 2,000 tons of grain and a substantial amount of medical supplies in Hong Kong and about 50,000 bags of wheat and rice flour in Shanghai.

(Canadian troops are among the Allied war prisoners held at Hong Kong.)

The material is taken from supplies shipped by the American Red Cross before the war and intended originally for distribution in China

RUSH MARKET

Hamburg Food Riots Kill 24

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—The Herald Tribune in a copyrighted dispatch from London today quoted "a reliable source" as reporting that 24 men and three women were shot to death in food riots in Hamburg Friday night.

The dispatch said it was stated that discontent had been growing in the large German city over shortages of food and uneven distribution, and on Friday several hundred men and women tried to rush a market place and were dispersed by police.

"Later," the dispatch continued, "a much larger crowd demonstrated in the streets. Troops were called out and ordered to fire. They then charged and the crowd was broken up, but 27 people had been killed."

2 Nazi Captives Are Recaptured

SCHREIBER, Ont., June 15—(CP)—Two German prisoners of war, who escaped while en route to a train from a prison camp in northwestern Ontario, were reported last night to have been captured.

The men, Eric Schmidt, 22, of the German navy, and Martin Maennick, 25, of the Nazi air force, escaped from their guards into the dense bush country Saturday.

A report received here last night from Neys, Ont., 170 miles northeast of Port Arthur, said the men had been recaptured. No details were immediately available.

The prisoners were being taken from the camp to the station where they were to have boarded the train enroute to a new camp.

A roll call at the station, it was reported here, revealed their escape.

2000 MORE YOUNG MEN

assured security last year with

Imperial Policies

● As time marches on, 2,000 more young men will reach the day when their Imperial "20-pay-life" policies become paid-up. Last year, of the 8,000 Imperial policies issued, more than 2,000 were on this ever-popular plan.

Young men like "20-pay-life" assurance because it provides adequate protection both before and after marriage and limits the savings required under the plan to the best earning period of life. They like the flexibility of the plan, too, for it can be made to mature as an endowment by continuing the same savings for an additional period.

Twenty years pass quickly. Ask Dad! The sooner you start your life insurance plan, the lower the premium deposits. The first step? Mail the coupon today.

Over 8,000 Imperial policies were issued last year. To a growing cross-section of the people of Canada, The Imperial Life is "my insurance company".

Tokyo Concedes Something

Through the Swiss Government arrangements have been made for an exchange of "nationals" between Canada and Japan. This will not affect prisoners of war, government officials, nor people of one country origin who have become naturalized in the other. But non-official and non-military Canadians who were caught by the war in Japan or in territory which Japan has occupied will be allowed to return home; the same permission being extended to Japanese subjects who were shut in Canada when the outbreak occurred.

Japan will profit by the exchange, because most of its "tourists" and other nationals in Canada are soldiers or sailors on the reserve list—or on leave for spy duty. Canada hadn't many soldiers or navymen in pre-war days, and was not interested in spy work. This is probably why Tokyo consented to the trade; it is bound to get the better of the deal in the military sense.

However that may be, it is good news that the Canadians are coming home, and the Swiss authorities again deserve thanks for their activity in mitigating the hardships caused by the war in the Pacific.

On A Clear Footing

The establishment of full diplomatic relations with Russia should be approved by Canadians. To not take this course would be curious in the circumstances, and following the agreements signed at London and Washington.

Russia is now our ally, not only for the war, but for the years which will follow the war. It has agreed to the principles laid down in the Atlantic Charter. To treat it with anything less than full confidence would be to question both Moscow's sincerity and the judgment of the British and United States Governments.

Consular relations were established four months ago, mainly because Russian representatives in the Dominion could facilitate the sending of Canadian munitions to Russia. With each country having a resident minister in the other, still better corelation of efforts may be expected in wartime, and following the war the machinery will already exist for putting trade and other matters on a reconstructive footing.

Canadians can still think as they please about communism and about some of the dark chapters in Soviet history; but Russia has fought itself off the black list, and it is the future — not the past — that is important.

Why Attu ?

The one thing certain about the Attu island affair is that Attu is not the destination at which Toyko's ambitions in this direction are aimed. Planting a Japanese force on a rock in the fog zone is not an end in itself, but only a manoeuvre with some other purpose in view.

Maybe it is a "face saving" exploit; no doubt Tokyo was in need of some face-lifting after it had digested the news from the Coral Sea. Perhaps it is a diversion dodge, intended to occupy the attention of United States naval and air forces while another blow is directed at Honolulu. It may be a defence move, an attempt to establish a look-out station against American air raids on Japan. Perhaps it is the first hop in a plan to invade Alaska or Canada's coastal zone; the island lies about half-way between Tokyo and Vancouver.

Whatever the object, it can be surmised that Attu island is going to be an unhealthy place for the enemy landing forces. It is well situated for bombing attacks from Alaskan bases; even fighter planes can fly that far. And that Japan will risk any considerable part of its naval forces to protect the occupation contingent is not likely; it has more important business to attend to elsewhere.

The Attu island episode does not make any less likely an attack on our western coast; rather the contrary. This the military men of Canada and the United States are not forgetting. The public should not be misled either.

Bond-Holders Would Benefit

It would be to the long run advantage of the holders of Edmonton bonds if they agreed to a refunding scheme that would cut down the interest rates on these bonds. Their investments would be safer. What they lost in interest money would be made up by the strengthening of their security. While it is true they have thus far received every cent due them, these payments were only made during the bad years by excessive taxation, which has only been slightly reduced and is not in prospect of any substantial reduction without a cut in the capital charges which have to be met. That Edmonton could weather another depression without defaulting is by no means a certainty. Older cities as large as it went under in the first storm—and the bondholders suffered thereby.

To keep up the interest and capital payments Edmonton had to neglect its streets and parks, skimp in every way possible, and is now showing the results. It is away in arrears in the matter of keeping up appearances, therefore in the attraction it offers to outsiders to come here to live and invest money. The more homes and home-owners there are in the city, the better will be the security against which the bondholders have loaned their money. If high taxes and untidy appearance are handicaps to city growth and investment, these are handicaps which the city's creditors should want removed.

These are facts which the bondholders cannot in their own interest afford to ignore. They should therefore be willing to give favorable attention to the effort the city council is making to bring about a refunding of the debt.

The city is now paying interest out of proportion—double the rates paid by cities in the United States.

———V———

Collapse of the conference on provincial debt does not affect the fact that 3.5 per cent interest is better than 2.44 per cent. Bondbrokers may not see that they would gain much by refunding on that basis, but the bondholder is likely to think he could use the extra $1.06 per hundred on his investment. It is premature to suppose the door has been bolted against a new deal.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1892 — 50 Years Ago

Rev. J. Gough Brick, of Shaftsbury, Church of England mission, on Peace River, who was in town last week, went to Peace river first in 1882, being sent by the C.M.S. He spent five years at Dunvegan, the principal H.B. post on Peace river and where the Indians mostly congregate. He had not lived long in Peace river before he became convinced that it was necessary to preach the gospel of work and bread to the Indians as well as the gospel of grace. Therefore, in 1885, he commenced the cultivation of a farm at Old Wives lakes, on the rear of Fort Dunvegan. At Dunvegan, on the low flat of the river, raising crops has been a perfect success for the past 40 years, and he was anxious to try if the more inviting upland would do as well. The first crop was moderately good. The 1886 crop was splendid. Encouraged by the results of these two years, and yet warned that the upland was not as certain for crop raising as the river flat, Mr. Brick projected his present mission on the flat on the north side of the river, about 15 miles above the crossing of the Peace on the trail from Slave lake to Dunvegan, and about 50 miles below the latter place. Mr. Brick left Peace River in 1887, and spent a year and a half in Ontario raising money for his mission and was successful in raising about $5,000. With this he purchased a complete farming outfit, including horses, cattle, poultry, a flour mill to run by horse power, a threshing machine, a reaping machine, mowing machine, wagons, etc., and returned to Peace river in the fall of 1888 . . . Besides work of teaching and christianizing the Indians, Mr. Brick is doing good service to the country by practically demonstrating the agricultural capabilities of the Peace River region.

Chicago: The rising whirlpool of Republican dissension over prohibition completely engulfed the party delegates on the eve of the national convention. What to do about the dry law became the one big question.

Washington: As thousands poured into the capital to add their voices to the demand for veterans' bonus payments, police sought recruits for a departing force that appeared to be forming.

The annual report shows that a new revenue deficit of $266,199 resulted from the 1931 operations of the city.

How Victoria Feels About It

Victoria has been generous the last two and a half years in gathering and shipping Bundles for Britain. Now, with the Japs ranging the North Pacific it is time to think of Bundles for Victoria.

So far nothing has been done to gather and prepare a supply of clothing and blankets to be available in an emergency here. There is a real need that something be done at once and members of the Women's Canadian Club have assumed the responsibility of seeing that something is done. They have undertaken to make a collection of clothing for persons of all ages. The clothing will be stored at first aid posts throughout the district, ready for immediate distribution in case of need.

Contributions of clothing and blankets will be received at the City Welfare Clothing Depot, 1332 Broad Street, and at the Science Building, old Oak Bay High School, Granite Street.

It can happen here. Let us be ready.—Victoria Daily Times.

German People Themseves Must Stop Gestapo

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The suggestion made last week in this column that the United Nations, and in particular Britain and the United States, spring to the aid of the fighting "silent people" and take steps to throw the fear of God into the German people if the shooting of hostages continues has been widely discussed since the article appeared.

Dorothy Thompson

A number of opinions have been offered. Some comments have been that two wrongs do not make a right; others have said that it is more important to concentrate on military objectives than on bombing for a political purpose.

Others have doubted whether such action would have any effect.

In particular the military mind comments: "Threats of bombing German communities would not deter Himmler or Hitler from continuing the slaughter of French and other innocents."

Total War

Now, to these I would say, first, that the idea of "total" war is to me horrible beyond measure. It was a German concept in the first place, and its author was Ludendorff, who first projected this pattern of war in his book "Der Totale Krieg" written in the twenties.

The International Red Cross is the author of the contrary idea that civilization imposes even upon war certain inhibitions. I am in favor of the Red Cross and not of Ludendorff and Hitler.

And I did not propose reprisals, as revenge for what has already happened. I proposed warnings and specific penalties if the shooting of hostages continued.

Political speculations prompted this suggestion and most of the commentators have failed to take them into account in passing judgment.

I also do not believe that threats of bombing German communities would deter Hitler or Himmler from shooting hostages. I do think that the German people themselves might deter them. I am assuming that the Gestapo is not popular in Germany itself. I am assuming that it is the least popular of all the Nazi institutions. I am assuming that in the German army there are hundreds of officers who loathe the Gestapo. And I am assuming all this on very good evidence, on a close and continuous study of this regime since its beginning in 1933, and on the confirmation of every report from Germany, including the latest one from returning correspondents.

The response to my suggestion from members of governments in exile in this country has been enormous. They have no doubt whatever of what the result would be on the morale in the conquered countries. True, as has been commented, the populations will continue to fight in any case. But it is just human to wish to be noticed by the great nations of the world.

Peoples' War

We say that this is a peoples' war, but we do far too little to demonstrate that it is. We actually do take reprisals for the bombing of Allied cities.
shooting of innocent hostages and the torturing of captives is the chief instrument, is allowed
But terror, of which the to go without protest. And even we have become so callous that we no longer react normally against the appalling lawlessness of what is being done. The attitude seems to be "How otherwise can they govern the occupied countries?" The terror is taken for granted.

Now, to that I must repeat: occupied countries have been governed before. Germany, for instance, was partly occupied by Britain, France and the United States after the last war, and there was sabotage and even attacks on the occupying forces, especially in the Ruhr territory. But never was a hostage shot. Every saboteur who was apprehended was tried. A Nazi national hero was Leo Schlageter who was shot by the French for blowing up a bridge. But Schlageter committed the deed; he was not shot because somebody else had done it!

It is not our business to give advice to the Nazis how to rule the conquered countries; but it is our business to protect our allies and rule out governing by naked terror. The only way we can rule it out is to warn the German people that they will share the fate of the victims of the Getaspo, unless they stop their Gestapo.

Can Stop It

The theory is also advanced that the German people cannot do anything about it. The answer is they can. No terrorist gang like the Gestapo can continue to operate against the bulk of public opinion, including that of part, at least, of the armed forces.

Furthermore, the situation in Germany is now critical in the extreme. I don't believe for an instant that a Czech shot (or bombed) Reinhard Heydrich. His assassination is another Reichstag fire; it's an excuse for a purge. And the purge is taking place quietly inside Germany as well.

Thereefore, the whole point of my proposal was to make the already hated Gestapo even more hated inside Germany—to make the German people feel that the sufferings of all people ricochet upon themselves. I remember the late Clarence Darrow once remarked, "Nobody in this world is sorry for anyone else; people are only sorry for themselves." He was arguing for the selection of jurymen who could imagine themselves in the place of the defendant.

This is what we must make clear to the German people. Every hostage murdered is a danger to them. The threat should be accompanied by appeals, by warnings, by denunciations of the Gestapo lawlessness; they should be told that we don't want to do this; they should be urged to take measures to protect themselves by stopping murder. They must be gotten over the idea drummed into them by Hitler that providence gives them some special immunity.

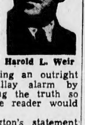
Saturday Night Radio Review

By HAROLD L. WEIR

The Japanese claimed, this week, that they had occupied or established bases on some of the Aleutian Islands. In reply to this claim, Washington issued a statement which was accepted in some quarters as a denial.



Harold L. Weir

Obviously, Washington intended its statement to be received as a denial of Japan's claim to have occupied one or more of the Aleutians. Actually, this statement, cautiously worded as it was, said nothing of the kind. It was clearly intended, without telling an outright falsehood, to allay alarm by carefully wording the truth so that the average reader would not discover it.

What Washington's statement said, in effect, was this:

That the Japanese had not landed on any island in the Aleutian group that had been inhabited by Americans.

It was the scrupulous care with which this statement was phrased that gave rise to the suspicion, later in the week, that the Japanese had succeedeed in getting a toehold on the North American continent.

That suspicion was confirmed last night when Washington was compelled to announce that the Japs had landed on Attu Island in the Aleutians and had also been seen at Kiska, potentially one of the best harbors in the Aleutian chain.

No Immunity

I said on this broadcast last week that Edmonton was in no danger from air raids unless or until the Japanese were able to establish a base on this continent.

If the site for such a base has been secured, as now seems well established in fact, and if the Japanese are able to develop it, Edmonton's period of happy immunity would appear to be over.

Certainly the Pacific Coast cities, if this is the case, will sooner or later feel the weight of Japanese fury.

It is absurd to dismiss the attack on Dutch Harbor as a mere diversion to cover up the major operation against Midway Island and, later, the Hawaiian group, as some have suggested. It is absurd for two reasons:

First, because a base in the Aleutians would be a good deal more valuable to the Japanese in the job of winning the war than a dozen Midway or Hawaiian Islands. As I have said many times before, Japan has got to knock out the North American continent to win. Judge for yourselves which base or bases would be most useful to her in that project.

Secondly, it is absurd to dismiss the attack on Dutch Harbor as a mere diversion, because diversion tactics are not applied in this war, except as an alibi. Attacking forces, as Hitler has done time and time again, stage a series of assaults to discover the weak points in the enemy's defences. Where they find a weakness, they break through. Where they are repulsed, they plead their attack was only a "diversion." Those engagements are described as "diversions" where they fail to succeed.

There seems little doubt, then, that Japan meant business both at Midway and at Dutch Harbor. If she meant business then, she will certainly do her best to hold whatever gains she has made.

With Aleutian points in the hands of the Japanese, the entire Canadian Northwest can anticipate an interesting summer. At present, I fear that the public has not been told all of the worst.

New Accord

An event of world-wide significance occurred on Thursday of this past week when, first, it was announced from Washington that President Roosevelt and Foreign Commissioner Molotov of Russia had reached a full understanding with regard to opening a second front in Europe and, secondly, when London announced the signing of a 20-year mutual assistance pact between Britain and Russia.

Apparently this pact was signed May 26 by Commissar Molotov and Prime Minister Churchill. Molotov then went on to Washington where he concluded his arrangements with the American president.

The significant thing about these new understandings with the Soviet government is that they provide a basis of co-operation, not only during the war, but after the war.

Britain and the United States and Russia are not only pledged to destroy the Nazi menace together, but together to work towards a post-war world that will realistically implement some of the promises of democracy.

Post-War Picture

This drawing of the Russian Soviets into the post-war world picture will cause jubilation among the reform groups on this continent and apprehension among the reactionaries.

I cannot feel that the new arrangement should either unduly encourage the radicals nor unduly discourage the reactionaries. Definitely, the accord does not mean that any form of Communism shall be foistered on this country.

Communism is a peculiarly Russian phenomenon. It could not thrive in any other country in the world. Indeed, that is the main objection to it.

It has accomplished a very great deal for the Russian people. Transplanted, it is frequently no more than an unwholesome mess.

Everyone knows that plants and diseases are native to certain soils and conditions and will not thrive in other soils and conditions. It is common knowledge, for instance, that coffee will not grow in Alberta, although it flourishes in Brazil, that only chickens may contract roup and that it is quite impossible to infect even the most industrious cow with housemaid's knee.

Not Native

Nevertheless, we still cherish the notion that political systems and economic philosophies will flourish in all and any kinds of mental soil. The idea is preposterous.

To jump to the conclusion, then, that post-war co-operation with Russia means an introduction of some form of Communism everywhere is pure nonsense.

Britain, Russia and the United States have too much sense to think that they can work out any single formula for peace and prosperity that will suit all nations. They are too wise to believe there is any universal panacea for the social and economic ills of all mankind.

But there will be a valuable exchange of experience and ideas. There will emerge, probably, a sort of composite pattern of universal governmental benevolence out of which the nations can choose those parts which fit their own needs.

One thing that Russia's participation should assure is this:

A more careful consideration of the rights of the common man. That axiom of equality of opportunity for all men which appears so proudly in the American Declaration of Independence may, under this new influence, be received as a working reality instead of a mere pleasing phrase.

Property

It may even be that the word's conscience will be rendered as sensitive to the protection of the individual as it has been to the protection of property.

I can see no development inherent in the participation of Russia more radical than that we should begin to take democracy seriously.

The superior sacredness of property in relation to the sacredness of individual human rights is an obsolete hallucination we have obstinately cherished, not because of our democracy, but in spite of it.

Perhaps we are about to abandon that delusion.

Whatever part Russia may or may not play in the post-war reconstruction, I am supremely confident that we are slowly but surely moving on towards a lasting realization of the unique worth and tremendous dignity of the individual human soul.

And that, of course, is only the essence of that democracy which we have preached so drearily long—and believed so pitifully little.

Food Shortages

This week the farmers of Southern Alberta confessed themselves puzzled over what they felt was a lack of concern, on the part of the Government, over the possibility of increasing the sugar beet crop in this province.

It was reported that there is little, if any, increase in the sugar beet acreage in Alberta this year. Nor has there been any indication that the Dominion Government is arranging for an increased production.

One cannot but feel that there is tremendous slackness somewhere. At a time when sugar was about to be drastically rationed on the card system, and has already been rationed on the honor system to a point where housewives, particularly in the country, are seriously embarrassed, this neglect of the obvious way out of the difficulty is confusing, to say the least.

As I have suggested many times in my articles in The Edmonton Bulletin, there is no reason on earth why Canada and the United States between them, by an intelligent and strict control of production, should not be completely self-contained, so far as food is concerned.

I am definitely no advocate of economic nationalism in normal times. On the contrary, I believe in the allotment of the world production along most expedient lines and an absolutely free trade to implement the effectiveness of that allotment.

But wartime is different. On this great, rich, fertile continent, we have a serious responsibility to our own people and to the hungry world.

Every single productive acre in North America should be specifically charged with the production of a required type of food.

Without some such arrangement, we will never have total production. Without total production, we will never have total war. And without total war, we cannot win the victory.

Ottawo does not appear to understand this point yet.

A sugar shortage in a sugar beet country is sheer nonsense.

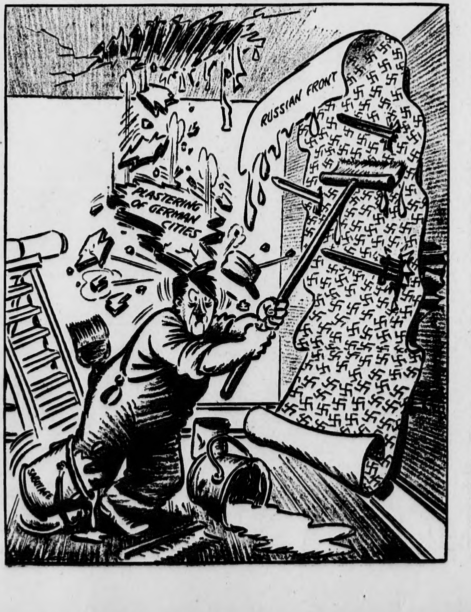
Now It's The Ceiling



Uncle Sam's Sailors

FROM THE VANCOUVER PROVINCE

"Make mine vanilla!" No, this is not the cry of a holiday-maker; it is the voice of the great American Navy at sea, as the "gobs" crowd round the soda fountain. For the American Navy is "dry," and was dry before prohibition.

Even the tot of rum, a tradition of the British Navy, is barred. But the boys have their ice cream bar, and that is what they want.

The American Navy is one of the best looked after services in the world.

There are no hammocks. All ships are fitted with iron bunks which fold up against the bulkheads when not in use, leaving a compartment for reading, card playing or table games. They are also equipped with mattresses and pillows, blankets and sheets.

The ships are all wired for sound, and every night, weather permitting, there are films, in addition to frequent "smokers," where excellent shows are given by the crew.

There are first-class boxing and wrestling programs, so don't think that because they eat ice cream instead of drinking rum the "gobs" are anything but tough. But the tougher they act ashore, the milder and quieter they are at sea. Although discipline is strict, there is a fellow feeling and camaraderie between officers and men, and despite the training of Annapolis—the American Dartmouth—the grand spirit of democracy shows itself in the service.

Dancing is one of the chief recreations of American sailors. They pride themselves on their dancing, and practice the combinations of steps to perfection as though they were going in for a dance marathon as soon as they strike land. Everybody in America dances, and the sailor's girl has to be something out of the ordinary to keep up with her boy friend when he's ashore.

At sea there are whaleboat races and swimming contests; in port baseball and football.

Sailors are not allowed to keep civilian clothes aboard, but they may change out of uniform when on shore leave. Most clothing dealers in the vicinity of navy yards keep a back room for changing and many of them supply the boys with lockers in which they can keep a complete outfit.

The jolly tar becomes a Broadway playboy while his money lasts. Families entertain the gobs when in port, receiving them into their homes, lending them their motorcars, and generally treating them like their own sons.

Besides this family life, American sailors have more facilities for entertainment than those of most other nations. Their seamen's clubs are well decorated and furnished, and offer shows and entertainments ranging from serious lectures to sing-songs with buffet suppers and tea dances.

Ships' stores carry large stocks of tobacco, candy, stationery, razors, and a varied selection of tinned foods, for the sailor is always hungry. In addition to the usual mess, the ships have lunch counters where sandwiches, "hot dogs" and snacks are available.

The well - stocked libraries have all the latest novels as well as histories and textbooks on varied subjects. Chapel is not compulsory, but the boys mostly like the chaplain, so they go anyway.

In small ships where chaplains of all religions are not carried, the padre will preach to the Protestants one Sunday and to the Catholics on the next.

The average rate of pay, excluding specialists, is forty dollars a month.

Utility Suits

LETTER TO LONDON TIMES

Sir: My tailor assures me that a utility suit consists of a jacket, a waistcoat, and a pair of trousers, and that he is not allowed to make a utility suit for me without a waistcoat. This seemed to me so incredible that I visited a large popular firm of men's outfitters, who told me exactly the same story—a three-piece suit or nothing. There must be many men in England who do not wear waistcoats; and it seems ridiculous that one is forced to have a waistcoat which will never be used and the material therefore wasted . Perhaps this is a minor point of "national importance."

Horses Replace Northern Trucks

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE — The humble horse is really coming into his own in the north and increasing numbers of horses are being purchased by the federal government for use in freighting on the Alaska highway. Several pack horses have been purchased from Ray Mustard and Clarence Sands and will be in charge of Lorraine Barnes, who will pack supplies to camps along the highway.

A carload of horses has been rounded up in the mountain valleys and will be used by the government for packing supplies. They were formerly used in the mountains by government surveyors and parties searching for minerals. They are being used to save gasoline and rubber.

With Those In Uniform

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE — Mrs. Roy Darke has received word that her son, PO. Robin Augur of Summerland, B. C., has landed safely in England, after ferrying a bomber over. PO. Augur graduated first in his class of airmen.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE — Prior to his departure for Calgary where he has enlisted with the Canadian Army Provost Corps, Colin Pringle, police chief here for the past two years, was presented with a gift by the curling club. Mrs. Pringle and baby daughter have gone to visit relatives in Ponoka.

Northern Girls Have Over 200 Dance Partners

ROCKY MOUNTAIN HOUSE —Towns adjacent to the new Alaska highway may well be looked upon as the spinster's paradise for, according to Thomas Titford who is a member of a construction crew in the north, there are "12,000 soldiers and 50 girls" at every dance. Life in the north, he reports is pleasant, but the scarcity of women is great.

Nazis Extend Unrestricted Sub Warfare

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Germany's answer to Allied threats of a second front this year is to be an extension of unrestricted submarine warfare over the entire North Atlantic directly to the Canadian and United States coast, the German radio announced Saturday night.

The announcement said:

"The operations area in which at all times military action must be reckoned with has been enlarged to extend to the American coast across the Atlantic ocean.

"This was caused by the fact that the United States entered the war, and furthrmore, by the development which naval warfare has taken since then off the American seaboard. Every ship which will sail in this area after June 26 is subjecting itself to destruction.

"The German government therefore is warning against sailing in the hazardous area which extends:

ZONE DEFINED

"From the Belgian coast three degrees east, of 62 degrees north, three degrees east and 68 degrees north, 10 degrees west to the coast of Greenland along 68 degrees north; then along the Greenland coast to Cape Farewell and from there to Cape Harrison; thence along the coast of Canada, the United States of America to Key West; from there along 28 degrees north, 60 degres west, 45 degrees north, 20 degrees west and 45 degrees north, five degrees west and then to the French coast at 37 degrees, 30 minutes north."

This charted a line running north from the Belgian coast through the centre of the North Sea, then westward to include the waters of Iceland and Greenland, then south along the Canadian and United States shores to the West Indies.

Speaking of the recent Anglo-British treaty and U. S.-Russian accord the Berlin radio said:

"The only point which might be of interest when viewed from a strictly dispassionate and strictly realistic angle, is the alleged decision to set up a second front in Europe this year.

"WELCOME" INVASION

"That, of course, is a hope perhaps not so much of the democracies themselves as of their hard-pressed Bolshevik allies, a hope which, paradoxical as it may seem, is shared by the German army, whose forces are itching to give a warm reception to any Allied expeditionary force which might attempt to fulfill the demand from Moscow."

ON FLAG DAY

United Nations Pledge Selves Anew To Banish Axis Tyranny From World

By The Canadian Press

The United Nations dedicated themselves anew yesterday, in a world-wide celebration of flag-day, to putting an end to Axis tyranny and establishing a peaceful order in which all men can enjoy freedom, security and justice.

From Cape Town, Washington, London, Moscow and Chunking, the hope of Allied victory and a better world was expressed.

In Washington, President Roosevelt welcomed Mexico and the Philippine Commonwealth into the alliance, raising to 28 the number of nations pledged to win the war, and re-asserted his belief that the people of these lands "know that their faith cannot be broken by any man or any force."

Leighton McCarthy, Canadian minister to the United States, said in a broadcast from Washington that the spirit which guided the United Nations into the war "will guide them in the world-wide reconstruction" after the war.

COMPLETE TRIUMPH

"We will pursue this struggle to a complete and decisive triumph, not for vengeance of our dead but for the safety of our children," Mr. McCarthy said.

In Great Britain 1,100,000 flags flew and throughout the Empire people heard a message from Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"In this ceremony," he said, "we pledge to each other not merely support and succor till victory comes but that wider understanding, that quickened sense of human sympathy, that recognition of common purpose of humanity without which the suffering and striving of the United Nations would not achieve its full award."

Broadcasting to the Chinese people, Sir Stafford Cripps, Britain's Lord Privy Seal, declared: "The time will come when we and America can strike Japan and then together with you, our brave Chinese Allies, we will win that victory which our combined power makes inevitable."

LONDON PARADES

All of the armed services and all types of war workers paraded in London in mid-afternoon. King George and Queen Elizabeth from a dais at the gates of Buckingham Palace reviewed the marchers. With them were the two princesses and the Princess Royal, King Haakon of Norway, King Peter of Yugoslavia, Prince Bernhard, husband of Crown Princess Juliana of the Netherlands, and heads of various European governments now in London.

Prime Minister Churchill stood at the side of the dais with diplomats, including U.S. ambassador John C. Winant and the Russian ambassador, Ivan Maisky.

Among the Dominions' service men were brisk-stepping Canadian army troops and members of the Royal Canadian Air Force and the Royal Canadian Navy headed by Lieut. W. M. Landymore of Oakville, Ont.

The spectators shouted tumultously. As the King and Queen returned to the palace, the huge throng broke through the police lines. Hundreds climbed the palace railings, others clambered over the Victoria Memorial. The Mall was practically impassable. When Churchill left, his car was held up by the shouting, flag-waving thousands.

Scotland, too, gave an impressive demonstration. The turnout in Glasgow, Edinburgh, Aberdeen and Dundee was described as "magnificent."

U.S. TROOPS PARTICIPATE

In Northern Ireland, Maj.-Gen. Russel P. Hartle, field commander of the A.E.F., said it was a privilege for American troops there "to participate with the Allies in such a demonstration."

"We shall carry relief to the oppressed who, despite their severe torture still hold to their faith that truth, honor and dignity will prevail," he said.

In Moscow, the Soviet newspaper Izvestia said the celebration of United Nations' flag day coincided with the "truly historic events opening a new chapter in the annals of the war of liberation against the Fascist hordes"—the signing of the agreement between the United States, Russia and Britain. Flags were flown from all public buildings.

"United we fight, united we win," was the favorite slogan in Chungking as the Chinese celebrated. Enthusiastic crowds shouted: "May the United Nations live 10,000 years!"

Gen. and Mme. Chaing Kai-Shek with foreign and Chinese notables attended a foreign office reception. In the evening a big lantern procession moved through the streets.

NEW DELHI PARADE

India, British, United States, Chinese and Netherlands troops paraded in New Delhi, India, a detachment of American troops leading the march past the reviewing stand. The Allied standards were carried by six-foot members of the viceroy's bodyguard.

Gen. Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of the Union of South Africa, declared in a broadcast that "what the infant League of Nations failed to achieve, the United Nations will attempt and will rebuild on deeper and surer foundations."

From London, Gen. Wladyslaw Sikorski, prime minister of the Polish government-in-exile, sent a message to Polish troops everywhere to "let the American colors fly from Polish masts in a sign of the lasting friendship which links us and the United States."

Many of the diplomats in Washington made the day an occasion for broadcasting messages to their people. Here are excerpts from some of them:

Lord Halifax, the British ambassador: "The people of America, famous for their energy, courage, and industrial capacity, are developing their giant strength on a scale, and with a speed, that is truly staggering. Every hour, every day, brings nearer the time of liberation."

Maxim Litvinoff, Russian ambassador: "Today's demonstrations by the United Nations will cheer and encourage their soldiers on all fronts—on land, on water and in the air."

Bill Cunningham's Column

NEW YORK, June 15.—(BUP)—Do you play tennis, Bub—better than fair tennis? Well, then, let's not be wasting time. Run out and have that racket restrung, shake the moth balls out of those flannel pants and break open the piggie bank. If you can get to New York within two months, you may return home with the 1942 men's national singles championship.

Ridiculous? Most certainly not. If you have a friend, bring him along and you may cart away the doubles title, too. The requirements are simple—five dollars cash for the entry fee, a moderate measure of ability and plenty of confidence. If you live in California or have relatives in the Umpires' Association, it won't hurt. But those items aren't vital.

The fact is, tennis—men's tennis—is in an alarmingly shaky condition. War and other factors have cut heavily into the ranks. As matters are balanced now, the national championships at Forest Hills will be as wide open as Joe E. Brown's mouth and the eventual title winner probably will be as obscure as a Scotland Yard inspector.

Eight Top Men Missing

THE eight top ranking men will not be on hand for the 1942 title contest. Five from the second flight of 10 are not available for competition. One by one all the glittering name players have dropped from sight. They have turned professional, they are serving with the army or they are in the navy. Actually, no sport has been harder hit.

For instance, Bobby Riggs and Frank Kovacs, 1942 champ runner-up, have become professionals. Frank Parker, nominally number three man but actually the top ranking amateur, is engaged in defence work in California. Former champion and current number four man Don McNeill is serving with a naval intelligence unit. Ted Schroeder, number five, is in the U. S. naval reserve.

Wayne Sabin, ranked sixth, has turned pro. Next in line comes Gardnar Bulloy. He is in the navy. Bitsy Grant, the number eight man, is in the American army. Not until we arrive at the number nine position and John Kramer, who shared the doubles title with Schroeder, do we find a ranking player who will try for America's biggest prize.

Californians Dominate List

KRAMER, the tenth ranked Bill Tolbert and such boys as Charles Mattman, Ted Olewine and Earl Cochell—who are ranked in the second flight—comprise the total of the name players who will battle for the cup. Incidentally, all are Californians. The sunshine state will dominate the August tournament to an extent never approached in the past.

One official of the U.S.L.T.A., a gentleman who refused to be quoted by name, told me today that the 1942 championships will be unique in two ways. They will be all-California affairs and they will be won by John Smiths, John Does or Tom Browns. Schroeder is the only man in the top eight who may find the time to head east for the big show.

"Then there are Budge Patty and Willis Anderson," my anonymous friend said. "Patty has played only in the west so far but he may well be the dark-horse. I hear he is very, very good. Parker is playing well, but is loathe to leave his work behind. Of course Gene Mako is a professional now and both Gil and Joe Hunt are serving with the naval forces."

Women's Competition As Usual

CALIFORNIANS will have all the edge for two reasons—for the most part they are younger and not yet subject to the draft and they can practice through the winter. To date, there has been no appreciable curtailment of the sport on the Pacific coast. Tournaments have been held on schedule and they have been patronized as well as might be expected.

In the east, the situation is not quite as settled. Spring Lake has been cancelled and the historic Seabright invitational may be next. The eastern grass courts championships will be played as usual at Rye, but the nationals will be doubled up at Forest Hills. In the past, only the singles have been played there. The doubles were held at Longwood.

There is one optimistic note—the women's competition will go on as usual. Excitement on the distaff side will be as strenuous as ever with Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan Cooke and the more tersely named but equally adept Pauline Betz doing business at the same old stand in the same grand manner. All of which will make our burdens a bit easier to bear.

That racket ready yet, Bub?

16 Survive Qualifying Round

President Charlie Smith Leads Prince Rupert Golfers

With President Charlie Smith showing the way in the qualifying round with a sparkling 74, Prince Rupert Golf Club's annual club championship got under way yesterday morning.

Al. Frederick, playing a very consistent game with 76, made up of a 39 and a 37, while Ingie Cameron put together two 39's for 78 for the third spot and Johnny Aitken was next with 79, made up of 41 and 38.

A total of 16 qualified and two rounds will be played this week in order that the fours might be reached by Saturday.

In the next round Charlie Smith meets Bob Haxby and Joe Harvie clashes with Al. Frederick.

Sports .... Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, June 15. — (AP) — The United States Army has just put out an order that soldiers on furlough no longer can accept money for athletic performances . . . Aimed at keeping army ball players out of benefit games where the promoters benefited the most, the rule also ruins any chance Cpl. Joe Louis might have had of defending his heavyweight title for dough this summer . . . A good many other soldier fighters, such as Tommy Gomez, Young Kid McCoy, Mike Raffa and Joe Muscato will feel the pinch . . . Washington has averaged 9,000 attendance for six night ball games that would have done about 2,500 by daylight . . . And Griff probably is wondering why he was agin' it for so long . . . Los Angeles sports writers will portray themselves in sports scribbling roles in the Gentleman Jim Corbett picture soon to be filmed.

Detroit racing stewards chased an owner of a one-horse stable clear off the grounds when he admitted he ran his nag merely as a "policeman" so he could put in a few claims during the meeting.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

C. M. Gibbs, Baltimore Sun: "If all the muscular energy Connie Mack has used while waving signals to his players for these many decades were welded into one lump of muscle—the Athletics would still be battling around the bottom."

Double x marks the spot.

It seems the Red Sox had a pretty good idea what was coming before Jimmy Foxx was sold to the Cubs . . . A couple of days before the deal was made, manager Joe Cronin came into the dressing room and asked: "Has anyone got a first baseman's glove?" . . . "Who hasn't, on this ball club?" retorted Tony Lupien, a first sacker himself.

SENIOR LOOP LEADERS FINALLY STOPPED

Jimmy Rattlesnake Subdues Arrows 2-0

Dodgers Show Big Improvement

Jimmy Rattlesnake handcuffed the Arrows before 3,200 fans at Renfrew Park on Sunday afternoon and enabled the Dodgers to stop the senior baseball league leaders 2-0.

The "Rattler' certainly deserved his shutout, for he permitted only three singles and, in addition to striking out nine, was always able to bear down just a little more when things began to look tough.

It was Eddie Belter's first loss in three starts and the one error which one of his team-mates committed happened to come in the only inning in which Lefty allowed more than one hit and the combination proved the big moment for the opposition, for two runs resulted.

With Rattlesnake doing mound duty and Coach George Green back in the lineup, the Dodgers looked as if they might go places right from the start and in spite of the fact that four errors were charged up to them, they played the steadiest game they have shown so far.

It was not until the seventh frame that an Arrow got as far as third and that honor fell to Lefty Belter who got a life on Wynn's error. Eddie went to the next station on a fielder's choice and he stole third, but Lupul grounded out to Bourasso to end the rally.

SEVEN STRAIGHT STRIKES

In the eighth Rattlesnake struck out Harris and Cherniowsky on six pitched balls. The first toss to Shandro was also a strike, but the Arrow shortstop got a life when Brant's throw to first was wide. The Dodger chucker to finish off a brilliant inning grabbed Ray Cox's drive with his bare hand to retire the side by throwing out Ray at first.

Belter walked only a pair and his first pass, given to Phil Bourasso set the stage for the runs which won the game.

George Green laid down a bunt along the third base line and Pete Danylowich, being a little over-anxious to catch the runner going to second made a bad throw and Bourasso continued on to third.

Belter struck out Superstein, but Dick Noon lifted a short fly over first into right field scoring Bourasso, Green pulling up at third.

Brant grounded out to first, but the second run crossed the plate, although Noon was caught trying to reach third, the play being Cox to Danylowich.

In the sixth, Superstein walked and stole second, but Belter retired Noon on strikes for the third out. The Dodgers threatened again in the eighth with one out.

Samis rapped out a two-bagger and Bourasso was hit, but the next two went out in order.

The Arrows had 10 men left on bases to the Dodgers' six.

TOLEDO, June 15.—(CP)—Lawson Little and Lloyd Mangrum walked away with the eighth annual $7,650 Inverness four-ball matches Sunday. They piled up a plus 14 count, greatest total in the Invitational's history, to beat out Henry Picard and Sam Byrd, who finished second with plus 8.

City Cricketers Win From R.A.F. By Score 165-83

Edmonton All-Stars defeated Penhold R.A.F. cricket eleven by a score of 165 to 83 at the Golf Links pitch here yesterday afternoon.

Drever's total was 56 and Edwards made 37. A. T. Neale was next high for Edmonton with 16 and C. P. Ortner made 14.

Bill Gibson, of the R.A.F. eleven, who is one of Manchester's leading bowlers, took three wickets for six runs and Legge four for 40.

"Hoppe" Hopkins, although only able to score six runs for the Penhold boys did a very stylish job of batting. Top batsman for R.A.F. was Childs with 32, Gibson being next with 27.

Captain of the visiting eleven was PO. Hill and Squadron Leader MacBryan was an interested spectator.

Aircraft Repair Beats Americans

Manning Depot Shuts Out Centrals 4-0 In Softball

Manning Depot registered the first shutout for the year in senior men's softball when they blanked the league-leading Centrals 4-0 at Kingsway Park yesterday afternoon. As a result of the win, the Airmen are now deadlocked with the Moose for second place.

In the exhibition half of the double-header, American soldiers dropped a 9-6 decision to the Aircraft Repair team.

Bill Richmond, who did the chucking for the Manning Depot, had his slow ball working to perfection and he completely baffled the Centrals.

He struck out five, walked one and allowed only five singles. Although a total of 10 Centrals reached first, only one got as far as third.

Al Young for the losers struck out 10 and gave out no walks.

Doug Stewart rapped out a home run in the eighth, driving the ball over the right field fence.

Singles by Laurie LaValley and Doug Stewart along with two wild pitches accounted for the first run for the airmen. In the fourth, Emlyn Evans singled, went to second on an error, to third on a wild pitch, and completed the circuit on another bobble.

In the sixth "Tiny" Davis hit through third. Jerry Webber followed with a two-bagger and Emlyn Evans' single did the rest.

Only Pink Elephants Missing

All-Sports Show Provides Variety Thrills For Relief

By SID FEDER

NEW YORK, June 15—(AP)—Dear John J. McGraw: If you happened to take a look down at your beloved Polo Grounds from baseball's Valhalla Sunday and didn't believe what you saw, don't be alarmed. Neither did we.

Oh, sure, there was Al Schact, and there was a baseball game between teams of big leagues now in the armed forces topping off the all-sports show for Army and Navy relief in which Sailor Bob Feller's outfit licked Soldier Hugh Mulcahy, 4-0, largely on a three-run homer by Jim Carlin, late of the Phillies.

But you must have been doing quite a bit of eye-blinking, before that five-inning fuss wound up the six-hour program for the 12,648 spectators.

Didn't you blink when you saw three golfers and Pole Vaulter Cornelius Warmerdam playing on first base, Joe Louis holding down second in a boxing ring, tennis-ers Alice Marble, Don Budge, John Nogrady and Karel Kozeluth splitting up short and third on a court marked on the baseline, and Tommy Dorsey's band working from the pitcher's box?

And how about those lacrosse teams from colleges in Maryland and New England? The only things missing were pink elephants climbing the foul poles.

There was just about everything else in the book. There was Warmerdam, the San Francisco bird-man, pole-vaulting 14 feet, 8 inches, and Greg Rice of Notre Dame taking a two mile run on turf in 9:15.2 and such other track performances as Jim Herbert's 52.4-second 440 and John Borrican's two-minute half-mile.

Just for the records, Feller allowed only three hits and fanned seven in the ball game and Sam Chapman of the Athletics doubled to drive in the only run Carlin didn't. Hozeluth and Nogrady knocked off Budge and Marble, 6-4, in the one-set tennis match. Cpl. Ed. Oliver outchipped Cpls. Vic Ghezzi and Jim Turnesa in the golf-ball belting, landing 4 feet, 9 inches away at 125 yards and 3-foot-0 at 175 yards with iron shots.

Louis and his long-time sparmate, George Nicholson, went their usual four rounds.

A softball game ended when the only "batter-ette" in the outfit wound up as a strip-tease at home plate and was chased right out of the ball park by both clubs. And there were a half-dozen bands doing their stuff. No one kept score on these. As matter of fact, the band-players, themselves, were the only folks following the score.

Leo Campbell Winner 15-Mile Bicycle Grind

Defeating a field of 13, Leo Campbell of the Olympic Club won the 15-mile handicap bicycle race for the F. W. Handley trophy yesterday afternoon in 38 minutes and 48 seconds, just one second slower than last year's time.

Jim McLeod of the Silver Hawks placed second and Frank Burton of the Olympics was third. Stan Lysack was the winner last year.

The race started at 10:30 from the corner of 104 street and 80 avenue and the course was seven and a half miles down the Calgary Trail and back to the place of commencement.

The first group of three riders was followed 30 seconds later by the next four. The third group started after another interval of 45 seconds and the last 30 seconds later, the winner being in the last group.

Campbell in addition to capturing the trophy, also had the best record for actual elapsed time.

The race was sponsored by the Silver Hawks Club and the donor of the trophy, F. W. Handley is a member of the Australian Air Force, being stationed here for a time last year.

The timer for the race yesterday was Byron Morrison and the referee was Roy Haliburton.

Jersey City Loses Game By Stalling.

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—President Frank J. Shaughnessy of the International League Saturday ordered Friday night's Montreal-Jersey City game thrown out of the standings and replayed from the point where time was called in the last half of the ninth.

Shaughnessy said he took the action because the Jersey City club "deliberately stalled to avoid having the ninth inning completed within the time limit and thus turned the game into a farce." Manager Frank Snyder of Jersey City also was fined $100.

Montreal trailing 3-2, rallied to score eight runs with the Jersey City pitchers once walking four straight men in an apparent effort to kill time. Jersey City had one man on base when the lights were extinguished and the score reverted back to the eighth inning.

The game will be continued on Montreal's next trip to Jersey City in July.

The Hornets and Arrows will play the senior baseball league game postponed from Wednesday last at Renfrew park tonight, starting at the usual time, 7:00 o'clock.

Proulx Again Quebec Champ

MONTREAL, June 15.—(CP)—Gerry Proulx, long-hitting French-Canadian pro from the Fairway Driving Range here, successfully defended his Quebec spring open title at the Summerlea Golf Club Saturday. He combined rounds of 72 and 66 for a 36-hole total of 138.

Stanley Horne of the Montreal Eslemere Club and three times holder of the Canadian P.G.A. title, was runner up, scoring 73 and 68 for a 141 total.

Survivors Land

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique, June 15.—(AP)—Survivors of the 2,158-ton Norwegian steamship Wilford, shelled by a Japanese submarine, have landed at Portuguese East African ports. The Wilford was attacked 200 miles off the coast in the Mozambique channel.

King Loses Good Chance For Sweep

By ALLAN NICKLESON

NEWMARKET, England, June 15.—(CP)—His Majesty failed to rewrite the English turf books Saturday when his previously unbeaten Big Game wound up a soundly beaten sixth as Lord Derby's Watling Street won the 162nd Derby before a large crowd that included the King and Queen.

The King, who with the Queen saw his Sun Chariot capture the historic Oaks Friday, had hoped of being the first of the Empire's rulers to complete the famous double and the first man in English turf history to sweep the "Big Four."

Sun Chariot also won the 1,000 Guineas and Big Game took the 2,000 Guineas last month.

But Big Game, odds-on-favorite, did not have the stamina required for the mile-and-a-half race. Under Gordon Richards' handling, he took the lead after three furlongs but then began to fade. Richards did not use the whip since jockeys are under instructions not to whip the King's horses.

Watling Street, who ran second to Big Game in the 2,000 Guineas, and Lord Roseberry's Hyperides hooped up in a stretch duel with Harry Wragg, Britain's 1941 jockey champion, bringing Lord Derby's color-bearer home a neck in front in course-record time. A. E. Allnutt's Ujiji was third in the field of 13. Quoted at 6 to 1, Watling Street stepped the distance in 2:29 3-5 as compared to the old mark of 2:30 2-5.

Despite fuel rationing and limitation on railroad trains, there was a large crowd including many service men, on hand for England's third war-time Derby. Hundreds walked the four miles from Newmarket while ponies and traps brought many others.

As the field of 13 thundered across the line the King lowered his glasses and turned to the Queen with a disappointed expression on his face. The crowd also was disappointed after cheering for their sovereign's entry to win the double.

Richards has yet to ride a Derby winner although he has ridden winners of all the other major races during his long career.

Lord Derby was unable to see the race as he was slightly ill. Lady Derby, however, received the invitation to the Royal box after the race and was congratulated by Their Majesties.

Whirlaway Third Carter Handicap

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP)—Whirlaway was beaten Saturday simply because they didn't give him enough room to run.

Warren Wright's ace took a crack at the cramped seven furlongs of the 42nd Carter handicap at Aqueduct—far short of his usual route—and although he closed 20 lengths and was fairly flying at the finish, he wound up only third to Doublrab, owned by Mrs. Tilyou Christopher of Miami.

There was hardly any doubt among the 25,289 fans that he would have won in another 15 or 20 yards, so fast was he moving at the finish.

The oldest American college Greek letter fraternity is Phi Beta Kappa, which was organized in 1776.

Thos. R. Elliott Gets Post With General Motors

OSHAWA, June 15. — Appointment of Thos. R. Elliott, as public relations manager of General Motors of Canada, Limited, was announced by Mr. R. S. McLaughlin, president of the company.

Mr. Elliott comes to General Motors from the MacLaren Advertising Company where, for twelve years, his public and industrial relations assignments made him well known to the press and the public across the dominion.

"For this very important position," said Mr. McLaughlin in making the announcement of the appointment, "we have chosen an executive whose record stamps him as well equipped to interpret our organization to the people of Canada. Mr. Elliott has been closely connected with General Motors of Canada since 1930, when he began to direct General Motors' publicity for MacLaren Advertising Company. This long association, involving an intimate knowledge of our company's plans and policies, makes him invaluable in his new post — particularly at this time, when General Motors is devoting the whole of its great manufacturing capacity and ever-growing resources to Canada's war effort.

FORMER NEWSPAPERMAN

"Tommy" Elliott, born in Goderich, Ont., attended Goderich Collegiate and Toronto University. He started in the newspaper field in 1912 and, after serving overseas with the Canadian Field Artillery, returned to become Western Ontario Editor for the London Free Press. Later, he became news editor of the London Advertiser and, for a time, served in the press gallery at Ottawa. He joined MacLaren Advertising Company at Toronto, in 1930.

In the literary world, Mr. Elliott is known for his numerous fiction stories on Canadian historical background. His novel "Hugh Layal," a story of the Red River Settlement, is standard in its field.

OUTSTANDING WORK

Mr. Elliott's public relations experience includes much outstanding work on behalf of some of Canada's largest industries and public organizations, particularly in radio, newspaper and motion pictures. He wrote and directed production of many well-known films, including "Motors on the March," "On to Victory" and the beautiful Red Cross film, "There, Too, Go I."

As public relations manager for General Motors of Canada, he will have headquarters at Oshawa, and will reside in this city.

Export Trade Sets All-Time Record

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—Canada's export trade has soared to a new all-time high and import figures now being compiled are also likely to set a new record, officials said yesterday.

May export totals, announced by Trade Minister MacKinnon, passed the $200,000,000 mark for the first time in Canada's history, reaching $234,180,000.

After making allowances for higher prices now in effect this figure still represents an export trade more than double that of immediate pre-war months. In May, 1939, Canada's export trade totalled $94,000,000.

The nature of exports is not divulged in wartime but the large increase is a direct result of war stimulus and is referred to by Mr. MacKinnon as "indicative of the way in which Canada's productive capacity is being mobilized for war purposes."

The April, 1942, export total was $169,390,000 and the May, 1941, total $161,639,000.

China Urges U.S., Canada Drive Japs Out Of Aleutians

CHUNGKING, June 15.—(AP)—The China Times urged in an editorial today that United States and Canadian action be taken at once to drive the Japanese from their foothold in the tip of the Aleutian islands and "pursue them right to the heart of Japan."

"Now is the time," the newspaper said, "for American and Canadian air fleets to strike hard."

The newspaper also urged that Soviet Russia give the United States plane bases in the Vladivostok area and on the Kamchatka peninsula, from which to attack Japan.

British Minister Is In Ottawa For Production Talks

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—Oliver Lyttelton, production minister in the British war cabinet, arrived here by plane late yesterday for conferences with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Canadian production heads.

He flew from Washington, where he has been engaged in conferences with President Roosevelt, Donald M. Nelson, chairman of the war production board, and Harry Hopkins, lend-lease administrator.

"I shall be seeing Mr. King and Mr. Howe (Munitions Minister Howe) while I am here," he said, "and we shall have some talks on the production picture as a whole."

382 Czechs Total Killed By Nazis In Heydrich Case

LONDON, June 15. — (CP) — Twenty-four more Czechs, one of them an 18-year-old girl, have been executed, the Prague radio reported Saturday in a broadcast heard by Reuters.

The broadcast said nine were killed in Prague and 15 in Bruenn. These latest executions brought to 382 the number executed in reprisal for the assassination of Reinhard Heydrich, Reichs protector for Bohemia and Moravia. This total did not include the persons killed in the town of Lidice, estimated to number 350 alone.

Ultimatum Given Czechs To Deliver Heydrich Slayers

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm today said it was reported there the Germans had given Czechs in Bohemia and Moravia an ultimatum expiring Thursday to deliver up the slayers of Reinhard Heydrich, the Gestapo official, or take the consequences.

The reports received in Stockholm from Berlin did not specify what measures were threatened.

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—William J. Donovan, United States coordinator of information, arrived in London Saturday for consultations with Ambassador John Winant and the British government.

150,000 Autos Are To Be Off Road In Year

TORONTO, June 15. — (CP) — Supplies Controller Alan H. Williamson told the Canadian Transit Association today that at least 150,000 Canadian passenger automobiles will be off the road by June, 1943.

In a blunt, forthright speech, Mr. Williamson also predicted that a year from now:

1. The oil shortage may be so serious pleasure travel will be "a thing of the past" and "all our ideas of essential transit may be outmoded."
2. Some railway rolling stock, at least, will no longer be serviceable.
3. The rubber shortage will be so acute tire repairs may be placed on a priority basis.

TREMENDOUS PROBLEM

Comparing the transportation problem to a "long-legged collie pup, all ears, all legs," Mr. Williamson said next year it would have to be likened to a baby elephant 'getting bigger and hungrier as he grows."

". . . One year from now," he warned the association, "you will be up against one of the most serious problems any group of men in this country ever faced."

Rubber alone constituted "one of the gravest, most ominous problems in our history" because the shortage was so acute "our whole war program is in jeopardy." Production from sources outside Asia—the Amazon Valley, Africa and Mexico—had never totalled more than 75,000 tons a year.

"Place that theoritical 75,000 tons on one side of the scale," he said. "On the other place the deficit of nearly 1,000,000 tons which the United Nations must make up, and I think you will agree that, on the basis of past performance, there is little to be gained by looking to Brazil, Africa and Mexico for the rubber we so desperately need."

The answer lay in synthetic production. But here too, there was a question mark.

MIRACLE NEEDED

"Frankly," he said, "I believe it will require almost a miracle to provide the plants to produce synthetic rubber on schedule in Canada and the United States.

"If the miracle does not happen—if 300,000 tons do not roll out of the American factories in 1942, if 600,000 tons are not produced in the United States and 34,000 tons in Canada the year after next—if this miracle does not happen, the situation for the United Nations will be immeasurably worse."

Planned production of synthetic rubber, even if the miracle occurred, was barely enough for war needs. "Not one single pound, not one ounce," would be available for civilians.

The "stark truth" was that there was no crude rubber except reserves stored up before Pearl Harbor, the "thin trickle" which eluded the Japanese navy in the first few weeks of the Pacific war and the "still thinner trickle" of wild rubber from Brazil and Mexico. Even if synthetic rubber production began tomorrow on a full scale, there would not be enough rubber, because crude rubber would still be needed.

NO MORE AVAILABLE

"From the tire factories of Toronto to the docks of Singapore it is about 11,300 miles—2,700 miles of land, 8,600 miles of submarine-infested water," Mr. Williamson said. "You may still take a trip to the Pacific, but that's as far as you can go.

"The ships aren't running any more.

"And before they do start running again, before we can get rubber from Eastern Asia, we must send across those 8,600 miles of ocean scores of warships and hundreds of transports—transports loaded to the gunwales with tanks and planes and cannon, transports crowded with men.

"Yes, before we can win back our rubber we must send 1,000,000 or more men way around the world. We must send them to Java, Borneo, Cebu and Formosa. To Palambang and Mandalay. To Panay and Tokyo.

"And the irony of it all is this: not one of these ships, not one tank, not one plane, not one armored vehicle, not one man, can be sent on that hazardous journey unless we have rubber."

U.S. To Give Aid To Dependents

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The Senate approved and sent to the House of Representatives today a military pay allotment bill authorizing the selective service to consider family relationships in calling men for duty with the armed forces of the United States.

Under the basic section of the measure, details of which were revised last week by a joint conference committee, the government would help the four lowest ranks of soldiers, sailors, marines and coast guardsmen support their dependents.

Deductions taken from the men's pay would be supplemented by Federal allowances which in some cases would be considerably larger than the fighting men's contributions.

The second section of the bill revises the Selective Service Act by authorizing the service first to exhaust supplies of single men, or those without bona fide family ties, before calling up husbands and fathers.

Test Planned On Oil Strike In Rocky Area

It was announced Monday by Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines, that an official production test of the oil strike at No. 2 well of Ram River Oils Ltd. in the Rocky Mountain House district is expected to be made next week.

The minister made this statement on his return to the city from a trip to Southern Alberta.

The test will be made by an official of the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board. It was pointed out that owing to road conditions some time will be required to get the necessary equipment on the ground.

With reference to work in the Turner Valley field, the minister said the government was giving sympathetic consideration to representations that some concessions in the way of reduced royalties be given for discovery wells located in the north end of Turner Valley.

The minister had no comment to make on a report received from Calgary that a petition was being circulated by oil operators in registering objection to the government regulation that oil drilling equipment satisfactory to the minister shall be on oil leases by September 1 next. This regulation will create considerable hardship in many cases, it is claimed by operators.

A year's notice was given by the provincial government last September to operators or leaseholders that satisfactory equipment must be on the holdings by September 1, 1942.

Mealtime Bugle Wins Widespread Popularity With Gallant Soldiers

"Come to the cook-house door, boys, come to the cook-house door."

That popular bugle-call brings the lads of Canada's modern army running. It is a ringing summons to one of the best tables set by any army, a spread that is certainly away superior to anything their fathers had in the last war.

If you were to cast an envious glance over the shoulders of the boys one of these bright summer mornings you would find them lacing into a breakfast something like this:

Grapefruit juice, rolled wheat, fresh milk, fried eggs, grilled bacon, fried bread, bread and butter, honey, coffee or cocoa.

This menu, taken at random from a weekly diet sheet issued by the messing and catering branch of the quartermaster general's branch, illustrates the splendid kind of foundation put under the man in khaki before he begins the day.

APPETITES WHETTED

With appetites whetted by the brisk training exercises of the morning, the husky lads of our army sit down at noon to dinner. A glimpse of a menu shows why it is called dinner, not luncheon: mulligatawny soup, fried salmon steaks, potatoes in cheese sauce, buttered carrots, bread and butter, prune pie, tea or milk.

TYPICAL SUPPER MENU

Following afternoon manoeuvres, the friendly bugles call the men in to a supper of which this is typical: beef broth with rice, cold ham, potato salad, cabbage, onion and turnip salad, raisin tea biscuits, cheese, apple roll with butterscotch sauce, tea or iced cocoa.

Behind all this artistry is the scientific watchfulness of the trained dietitian who sees that meals are properly balanced in proteins, minerals, vitamins and other elements vital to health.

APPRECIATE FOOD

The army lads are cheerfully blind to all these scientific angles. They simply know that these meals stick to their ribs. The scales tell the story. Despite the hard physical training recruits often gain more than 10 pounds in their first few weeks with the armed forces.

Lieut.-Col. Ralph Webb, head of the messing and catering branch, is concerned not only with the development of diet sheets and the purchase of the great quantities of foodstuffs. He is determined that the cooking shall be the best. "The contents of swill can," say his instructions, "are the criterion of good or bad cooking."

PLENTY TO EAT

The men are invited to eat all they need, but there are stern injunctions against the wastage that follows the rejection of unpalatable cooking.

NO SUBSTITUTIONS

Substitutions in the diet sheets, which might be attempted merely because one dish is easier to prepare than another, are not permitted. The diets, which change daily, can, however, be altered with the permission of the officer commanding when, for instance, specified items are not available in a particular locality.

MODERN EQUIPMENT

The cook's job is made easier with modern equipment. A mobile cooker has supplanted the unwieldy army "kitchen" of the past. Five collapsible metal frames join together to form a trench along which fire from a petrol burner is forced by air pressure. The cooking utensils are large square cans, known to student cooks as "Dixies." They hold enough food to serve 150 men.

If petrol should run out in the field, the cooks fall back on that old standby, the "Aldershot oven" or the "broad arrow stove." The fire is built in a pit dug in the ground and the flames spread along three diverging trenches.

The rations always come up, and they're always good.

During celebration of army week June 29-July 5, Edmontonians are going to co-operate in eating "army rations." Restaurants will serve them and they will be included on home menus as well.

City Schools Will Be Used Sugar Canvass

With compulsory sugar rationing, imminent organization is underway in Edmonton for canvassing of householders in the city, it was learned Monday.

While detailed plans of the procedure to be followed have yet to be released, it is known that co-operation has been assured by the Edmonton Public School Board, in the use of city schools as canvassing headquarters.

Applications for ration books will be sought from householders in the various school districts, and the canvassers will return to the school depot, to fill in the name and address of each householder on the ration books.

Principals of the city schools, or substitutes will supervise the start of the canvass. It is the intention to complete it in one day and the rest of the work, including filling in of the books, in the next day.

It is expected that the canvass will start within the next two weeks. It will be directed by the local officers of the Wartime Prices and Trades Board.

The unit won glory at St. Elois, the Somme, Vimy Ridge and Passchendaele.

Getting Around

with Jack DeLong

When you have your money on a winner, keep playing it.

That's the advice veteran gamblers give concerning sport contests, so we feel it might also apply to the grim game of war.

Maj. P. de Seversky, United States airplane designer, who has followed the rocky road pioneered by the late Gen. "Billy" Mitchell, in his enthusiastic advocacy of air power, as the chief weapon of victory in modern war, seems to have backed a winner.

Some of de Seversky's predictions concerning the sweeping changes in military and naval strategy as the result of the airplane, are being fulfilled with almost uncanny accuracy.

The plane designer has repeatedly stated it is unlikely that full scale naval battles of the kind fought in other wars will ever again occur. Reports from the battle of the Coral Sea certainly confirm such a view. At no time were the opposing surface units closer than 80 miles

Looking After Army's Sweet Tooth

Canadian soldiers, traditionally irresistible in attack and immovable in defence, are helped to this unsurpassed position by the excellent rations provided. Even under stress of battle, the ration parties are included among the priorities. And while roast beef is considered a vital part of the "chow" the Canadian likes a little sweetness along with his meal. Herewith is a typical army cook bringing in a tray of tarts for the rounding out of a palatable meal.

Rev. Daniel Young Stresses Need For Alertness At Naval Services

Officers and men of H.M.C.S. "Nonsuch", under command of Lieut. G. L. Crawford paraded to morning service at First Baptist church, Sunday. Accompanying them were the Sea Cadet Corps "Warrior" and the Sea Cadet Corps band. Approximately 250 men attended the service, which was conducted by the minister, Rev. Daniel Young.

Speaking on "The Middle Watches", Rev. Mr. Young stressed the need for constant alertness in the carrying out of duties by the navy.

Alertness is demanded, he said, because of presence of danger, occasional tediousness of work, and requirements of duty.

CITES ATTACKS

Two happenings in the last year where alertness was of vital necessity, he said, were the Japanese attacks on Pearl Harbor and Ceylon. "Without placing any blame but citing the instance as one when alertness was vital," Mr. Young said, "the damage at Pearl Harbor might have been less, if greater alertness had existed."

In the case of Ceylon, he said, the squadron launching the attack was sighted by Catalina flying boats manned by Canadians, who reported to the base, thus Ceylon was warned, although the men were not heard from again.

Increase of the Canadian navy from a token force of 1,744 officers and men and five ships at the outbreak of war, to 30,000 officers and men and 350 ships has been one of the wonders of the war, he said.

Canada, he said, was quick to realize the importance of sea power and the growth of the Canadian navy has been spectacular.

Praise was given the work of the merchant marine by the minister, who spoke of their heroic work, without any "heroics" accompanying it.

ALERTNESS VITAL

In all services of the navy, he asserted, alertness must always play a vital part, even in the late "watches," as in the easier and earlier ones.

Special children's day services were held at many city churches. At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, the children's service was conducted in the morning by Andrew H. McKenzie, with music by the junior choir.

The city's share of the relief costs for the 1942 period was $8,970, the provincial government paying the remainder of $33,600. Last year the city's cost of special relief was $42,011; the provincial and dominion governments sharing $138,084.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

Britain and Russia have signed mutual assistance pacts and the United States and Russia have also signed agreements of great importance. Do you think these pacts will have better results than many signed among great nations in the past?

THE ANSWERS

G. ROSE, farmer: The pacts are certain to have much better results than any of the past, in my opinion. For one thing there's not a single reason why any of the three nations involved should want to fight each other in the predictable future. Therefore there's no element of convenience or appeasement connected with the agreements. In the case of Munich and in the case of the Soviet-German agreement, fear and convenience were both the big factors.

• • •

C. McNIVEN, school teacher: I feel sure the pacts will have better results than any in the history of the world. For one reason they are made by three nations, that are powerful in three distinct divisions of the globe. All possess ample physical resources. If after the war they make certain that access to these resources will be available to all people, the basis for a truly lasting peace will have been established.

• • •

W. RICHARDSON, war veteran: Nothing need prevent lasting agreement between the signatories of the pacts. The three nations involved should be able to police the world for decades and perhaps centuries.

Muskwa Is Included In Service To Assist United States Services

Daily air mail service between Edmonton and points as far north as Nelson and Muskwa will be established shortly, according to word received Monday from local postal authorities by officials of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce.

Officials of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce expressed gratitude Monday over the announcement.

Muskwa is the name of the location immediately across the river from Nelson where American engineers are stationed in connection with Alaska highway construction.

The service is especially designed for American army and civilian contractors and will serve points along the proposed route.

The local chamber of commerce working in co-operation with local postal authorities foresaw the urgent need of such a service early last spring when engineers from across the border were taken north by the trainloads.

Fool Marriages Are Fault Of Parents

Mothers And Fathers Often Responsible For Hasty Action By Their Children; Propinquity Is Very Effective As a Match-Breaker

Dorothy Dix

I get many letters from parents asking how they can break off the unsuitable marriages that their children are bent on making and that will inevitably ruin their lives. Well, making a lovesick boy realize that because Sally has golden curls on the outside of her head does not compensate for her not having a single idea inside of it, and causing an enamoured girl to perceive that John is a lazy loafer instead of a Fairy Prince, is a feat that deserves to be classed among the minor miracles. Still it can be done. Only fathers and mothers can't do it the way they try to do it.

The time-honored technique in such cases is for Father and for Mother to get rough and to assert their authority. They forbid John to date the Smith girl again and shut their door in the Jones boys' face. They go over the family history of the lad and lassie who have dared to cast amorous eyes on their own darlings, and dig up the fact that their grandparents lived on the wrong side of the tracks, or that their Uncle Abner was a bootlegger, or that their Cousin Susie was gossiped about when she was a girl. And they play upon the shortcomings and the personal idiosyncrasies of the boy and girl friend as upon a harp with a thousand strings.

All of which simply precipitates the catastrophe they dread. Parental opposition has rushed more boys and girls into fool marriages than anything else in the world. It rouses all of the combativeness of high-strung youngsters and makes them determined that they will show Mother and Father that they won't be dictated to, or let anybody else pick out their husbands and wives for them.

SHUT THEIR EYES

Worse still, it makes them the champions of the boy and girl to whom their parents object, and causes them deliberately to shut their eyes to defects that they otherwise would perceive in those with whom they contemplated spending the balance of their lives.

What, then, is the best procedure for parents to take in trying to save their children from making the fatal mistake of marrying the wrong ones? An old method of dissipating love's young dream that is almost as infallible as Grandma's recipe for sponge cake is to give them an overdose of the society of the party of the other part, for propinquity is just as effective as a match-breaker as it is in match-making.

So instead of trying to separate John and Sally from the objects of their ill-advised affections, the wise parents have them always under foot where John and Sally get a close-up view of their little "ways" and an earful of their conversation. Any romance that can survive spending a week in the country with nobody to see or talk to but their sweeties and nothing to do but bill and coo, is a deathless passion with which no one has a right to interfere. Otherwise they will be so fed up with each other that they will never want to meet again. This remedy is particularly recommended for hot summer weather.

Another true and tried way of making a love-blinded youth or maiden see how unsuitable a mate not in his or her class would be, is the one that Thackeray recommends in one of his stories where the old Major, after vainly trying to induce his ward to give up an illiterate girl with whom he thinks himself in love, says: "Ah, I see in her letters she spells affection with one 'f'." That turned the trick, for love can stand abuse and contumely, but not ridicule.

SCARED SUITORS

A mother I knew used to scare off the undesirable suitors who hung around her pretty daughter by being as sweet as honey to them, and in a burst of confidence telling them what a darling Maud was and how she would hate to give her up, but that she feared that she had spoiled her because she didn't know the first thing about anything domestic, or how to take care of money. And what it cost to dress her they simply wouldn't believe if she should tell them! That made the prudent one move on.

These are mere suggestions for handling the situation diplomatically. Naturally every case requires different treatment, but all parents should know the approaches to their own children.

What To Do

If you are so fortunate as to have a summer home, you can bring cheer to many of your friends by entertaining at house, or week-end parties.

Issue your invitations either by phone or by letter, and be specific in the length of time you wish the guest to remain with you. Also tell your guest what train he is expected to take and whether you will meet the train or send someone to meet him. If there are to be a number of guests you might plan to have those with cars meet those who must travel by train.

Be sure your guest rooms are adequately furnished and comfortable, provide attractive menus, and some entertainment to suit the tastes of your guests, and tell them what kind of clothes they will need.

REMOVE SCORCH STAINS

Slight scorch stains on washable white cottons (where threads are not actually burned, merely a little colored) can often be removed by ordinary washing. Or by simply dipping into water and spreading in the sun to bleach. Several bleachings may be necessary before the material is restored to its original whiteness. If the scorch is more severe, a good commercial bleach may be employed.

Opening—♣9. 15

The nine of clubs brought out the deuce, six and king. Lochridge, sitting South, led his singleton spade. When West played low, dummy ducked with the nine and the ten won. East exited with the trump, which was won in dummy. The singleton heart was led and South played the ten, West taking the jack. On a second club lead dummy put up the ace.

A low spade was led from dummy. East did not play the ace, and Lochridge ruffed. Now the king of hearts was led. West played low, hoping the declarer would not have the nerve to let the king ride, but Lochridge discarded a club from dummy. He cashed the queen of trumps, then led the queen of hearts, which West covered, and dummy ruffed. A spade ruff put Lochridge in to cash the nine of hearts, on which dummy let go the last club. Then Lochridge ruffed out his losing club and claimed the rest.

Need Vitamins for Health, Youthful Looks

We need all the vitamins to keep our youth and looks. But we specially need foods containing vitamin A—yellow fruits and carrots, sweet potatoes and parsley—if we'd resist infections such as the common cold.

Vitamin B1 helps keep up body warmth, vitality — so plan more meals with milk, whole wheat foods, liver. And include more vitamin C, to keep body cells and tissues up to par. Best sources are citrus fruits, tomatoes.

Vitamin D, needed for strong teeth and bones, is obtained mostly from sunlight. But you can also get it from fish-liver oils and, in a small quantity, from eggs and butter. For a healthy skin, more vitamin G, in green leafy vegetables.

Such a diet need cost no more than the meals you have now. Plan healthful, vitamin-rich menus for yourself and your family!

Our 32-page booklet suggests menus bursting with vitamins, gives "Keep Fit Diet" and a chart showing vitamin content of everyday foods. Explains role of vitamins in retaining health, energy, looks. Tells 10 ways to preserve vitamins in cooking.

Your Baby And·Mine

All mothers are upset when their children are teased. They feel that the barbs are too pointed and the child ill-prepared to defend himself. It usually is the younger, more helpless children who get the largest share of teasing.

ELDRED

Yet, this is the way of the world. Teasing is a playful way for other children to explore a child's vulnerability. It isn't a particularly pleasant experience, but it is a often it is so well-deserved. The child knows his own weakness but boils at hearing it aired in public. profitable one, if the teased child makes it so.

What makes teasing so bitterly resented is that Adults can help children to build up a successful defence against teasing. They must make it plain that the world is never going to side-step the child's pet corns and he may as well discover that teasing need not be a mortal wound but only a temporary bruise.

However much the soft-hearted mother may want to pity her teased child and act vindictively toward her teaser, she'll do the child more good if she masks her emotions and shows him how to take it.

"All children get teased," she remarks placidly. "Just laugh at him or ignore him."

For, all in all, laughter is the best and sharpest weapon against teasing. The smile may be acid but it works. There is no fun in teasing a child who parries the verbal thrusts with laughter. If at first it is hard to smile it becomes easier and easier when the child discovers how potent is this weapon.

Children who try to defend themselves hotly; who fall into helpless tears or run to mother for protection and soothing, are grist to the teaser's mill. He isn't interested in knowing that his teasing is unfair, he is interested only in making the teased one uncomfortable. When he does he has succeeded.

The world is full of children who do not hesitate to take advantage of a child's weakness, but it isn't in the cards that a parent should stand guard to protect him from them. Each individual must protect himself, discover what works and what does not, to fight off these mean attacks. It's a good sense to show a child early in life that a smile will blunt the barbs and tie the tongue of the most aggressive teaser.

THE EARTH IS NOT CLOSER TO THE SUN IN SUMMER THAN IN WINTER
6-15

Because it is warmer in summer than in winter, people have long supposed that the earth was closer to the sun at this time. The change in temperature is due to the slant of the sun's rays, rather than to nearness. The facts are, according to astronomers, that the earth and sun are several million miles further apart in summer than in winter, but the rays come down more directly.

Points For Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "How about a family reading circle this summer? I know I'd enjoy it."

Daughter: "So would I. And may I ask Susie to come over and read with us?"

Mother: "You can't play all the time this summer. I want you to read aloud to me for an hour every day and we'll keep the dictionary here for you to look up the words you don't know."

When reading is imposed as a task, we cannot expect it to develop a love of reading.

VICHY, June 15. — (AP) — The Bank of France again increased Saturday the credits available to the Vichy government to pay the expenses of the German army of occupation. The credits were increased by 12,000,000 francs ($264,000 at the former rate of exchange of the franc), bringing the total thus far credited to the government to 181,000,000,000 francs $3,982,000,000).

McCoy Health Service

The fungus which causes athlete's foot is commonly found on the floors of gymnasiums, locker rooms, around swimming pools and on the tiles in public showers. The disease is picked up in walking through such places in bare, warm, moist feet. As may be suspected from the name, the disorder is most commonly found among those who are athletic. It is exceedingly common among university students and probably three-fourths of the male students either have or have had athlete's foot. The reason more men are affected with this trouble is probably they are careless about protecting their feet and usually do not wear rubber bathing shoes. A second reason is that men usually do not give their feet the same care that women do, and this carelessness may lower the resistance of the feet to the microscopic vegetable parasite.

If one member of the family picks up the disorder, he may spread it on the bathroom floor at home and other members may easily contract it. By first rubbing the infected feet with a towel and then other parts of the body it is possible for the infection to spread to the groins or arm pits.

Several forms of this disorder are known, and the symptoms are itching, smarting, scaliness, redness, thickening of the skin and cracks and fissures in the skin. The part under and between the toes is usually the first place involved. Athlete's foot tends to grow worse instead of better if it is not corrected. The treatment of athlete's foot consists in applying preparations which will kill the fungi. To stop any possible reinfection from the shoes in which the fungi continue to grow, powdered sulphur may be sprinkled into the shoes twice a week at night, shaking the shoes out well the next morning. Putting gasoline on the shoes and allowing them to dry will also kill the fungi. All stockings should be boiled if possible, or woolen hose should be sent to the cleaners.

Until your feet are healed, do not go barefoot in a shower or along runways used by the public. I have found that local treatment of the affected area with strong ultra violet ray is very beneficial as the fungi are thereby destroyed. Whatever treatment is used one must persevere, since one small unhealed patch will be enough to start the trouble all over again.

To protect yourself against ringworm of the feet, or athlete's foot, when some other member of the family has it, observe the following rules: (1) Do not walk barefoot, use slippers or rubber shoes. (2) Do not borrow articles such as shoes and stockings. (3) Do not use a bath towel shared by another. (4) Increase the resistance of the skin of the feet by wearing light cool shoes, bathing the feet often, changing to clean hose frequently and exposing the feet to the sun and air. (5) When taking a bath, cleanse the tub with water as hot as possible. (6) While using a shower, stand on a clean thick towel and step onto a clean newspaper spread out on the floor. (7) Remember that the best way to rid the clothes or towels of the fungus is to use scalding hot water.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address Mc- St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Paprika Adds Spice To Fowl

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Here are two recipes to add flavor and nutrition to your summer entertaining:

PAPRIKA CHICKEN
(serves 4 to 6)

One fowl, flour, salt and pepper, ¼ cup shortening or chicken fat, 1 clove garlic, 1½ tablespoons paprika, 2 cups stock or water, 1 cup sweet or sour cream, 2 tablespoons flour.

Singe, wash, and joint fowl. Dredge lightly with flour, salt and pepper. Saute until golden brown in fat or shortening. Remove excess fat. Add stock (made from peeled chicken feet, the neck, giblet and wing tips), garlic and paprika. Simmer gently 2½ to 3 hours. Make paste with cream and flour and add to chicken and stock. (Add water to make 2 cups). Heat just to boiling and serve garnished with fried bread cubes.

REMOVE RUST STAINS

To remove rust stains from porcelain enamel bathroom or kitchen fixtures, try rubbing the spot with a cut lemon. Be sure, however, to wash the lemon juice off immediately and dry with a clean cloth. Acids, if allowed to remain on porcelain, are harmful to the glossy finish.

Minute Make-Ups

The Summer Girl puts on her own Strawberry Festival! First, a strawberry masque for a minute. Then strawberry buttons down the front of her blouse. Then she matches her button originals with a touch of strawberry-red for her cheeks and lips—and at her fingertips! And—just for fun—she orders a strawberry soda!

KITCHEN WINDOWS

You can give your windows an unusual treat this spring by stitching your own curtains at home. Only your imagination need limit your experience because nowadays modern sewing machine attachments turn every decorating trick into something professional-looking. Appliqueing, cording, shirring and many other smart finishes are easy, foolproof tasks for even the beginner. Your kitchen window, for instance, would welcome the delightful change from straight-hanging curtains to a wide, pleated border that frames the top and sides. Make it of checked gingham and use the pleater attachment to turn out crisp, even pleats in a jiffy. Special attachments will be explained at your local sewing centre.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Quivering nerves can make you old, haggard looking, so weak, worn out and cranky — can make your life a nightmare of self-pity and the blues. So don't let yourself go like this!

Often such nervousness is due to functional monthly disturbances. So start taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. Pinkham's Compound has helped thousands upon thousands of girls and women to calm jittery nerves and relieve female functional distress. Why not YOU? Worth trying! Made in Canada.

To advertise or not to advertise, when demand exceeds supply or when withdrawn completely from the domestic market, is one of the many problems that confront business today.

Women Must Do Work Done Formerly By Men—Mrs. Eaton

HAMILTON, Ont., June 15.—(CP)—Women — and particularly young women—must be prepared to undertake lighter forms of work ordinarily performed by men, Mrs. Rex Eaton, director of the women's division of national selective service, said in an address Sunday at a conference of the business and professional women's clubs of Ontario.

Present needs had been met by women who needed work but the women of Canada had indicated that when the time came for the direction of women into war industries they would be ready. "The lighter work ordinarily undertaken by men must be assumed by women, and in larger part by younger women," Mrs. Eaton said.

Women would pay the price of fatigue, loneliness, boredom and inconvenience for their contribution to the war effort and in some cases homes would be upset.

"I believe that you will agree with me that the last group who should be held responsible for war production is made up of mothers of younger children," Mrs. Eaton continued. "It is a sad day for a nation if a further demand for public service is put upon the mothers of younger children."

The price women would have to pay should be no higher than essential. Protection should be provided through regulation of hours and conditions of work, and proper housing and recreational facilities should be provided. These conditions were necessary on the ground of sound labor and production policy as well as being a moral responsibility.

ALL SAINTS' ANGLICAN Cathedral was the scene of an interesting military wedding Monday morning when Cpl. Ethelyn Maureen Miller, C.W.A.C., became the bride of Q.M.S.I. A. R. Bannard, R.C.C.S. Although there have been weddings between members of the different branches of the army in Military District 13, this is the first marriage between two army members serving in the same unit. Cpl. Miller is attached to the radio staff of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals at Calgary as a stenographer and radio operator while Q.M.S.I. Bannard is of the instructional cadre, R.C.C.S. at Edmonton.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Miller of Hardisty while Q.M.S.I. Bannard is the son of Mrs. C. T. Bannard of Edmonton. The ceremony was solemnized at 10:00 am. by Rev. Canon Trendell.

Volunteer Margaret Latta, C.W.A.C., of Edmonton, stationed at Calgary, was the bride's only attendant.

S.M.I. F. W. Purkis supported the bridegroom as best man.

BRIDE WEARS UNIFORM

Instead of the traditional white satin or sheer gown and the bridal bouquet, the bride was smart in the trim khaki uniform of her unit. Her bridesmaid also wore the C.W.A.C. uniform.

Following this most military of weddings, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fred Bannard, brother and sister-in-law of the bridegroom, entertained more than 30 guests at a reception in honor of the bridal pair. Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., area commandant, attended the wedding and reception.

Miss F. Scott, Robert Bentley Marry Saturday

SPICY carnations, snap dragons and iris were used in delicate profusion throughout the home of Mrs. W. M. Scott on Saturday evening, in setting for the wedding at which her daughter, Florence, became the bride of Mr. Robert Gordon Bentley, son of Mr. C. F. Bentley. The Rev. A. B. Argue officiated.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Alberta, having obtained his B.Sc. degree in agriculture.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. William Kennedy of Calgary, was becomingly frocked in a horizon blue redingote ensemble, simply styled with full skirt and girdled waist. Her accessories were in navy blue and she wore a navy off-the-face hat. A corsage of pink roses and blue forget-me-nots completed her ensemble.

Miss Alice Scott was her sister's only attendant. She wore a navy floral printed silk, navy accessories and corsage of American Beauty roses.

Mr. N. N. Bentley was his brother's best man.

After the ceremony, a reception to the immediate families and a few close friends of the bridal couple, was arranged. Mrs. Scott wore a navy sheer redingote ensemble and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Bentley chose a two-piece ensemble with printed long-torso bodice and knife-pleated black skirt. Her accessories were black and she wore a corsage of talisman roses.

BRIDE'S TABLE

Slender pink tapers in silver sconces lighted the bride's table, which was centred with a tiered wedding cake imbedded in pink tulle. Mr. G. Bentley proposed a toast to the bride.

Following a wedding trip to the southern part of the province, the couple will take up residence in this city.

For travelling, the bride changed to a navy tailleur with which she wore old rose accessories.

Out of town guests attending the ceremony included Mrs. John Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Miss Isobel Kennedy and Mr. William Kennedy, all of Calgary.

E. Farquharson Mr. Thompson Are Married

AT a pretty wedding ceremony in All Saints' Cathedral Friday evening, Canon A. M. Trendell united in marriage, Ena Gwyneth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Farquharson of Moose Jaw, formerly of Edmonton, and Mr. Adam Gordon Thompson, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Thompson of Ontario.

The bride was attractively frocked in a British tan sheer, with which she wore a large picture hat and matching accessories. A corsage of orchids completed her ensemble.

Miss Aleta Vickse attended the bride as bridesmaid. She chose a soft beige frock, brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

Little Barbara Deddome was a charming flower girl in her frock of crisply starched white pique, matching Dutch cap and a basket of multi-colored sweet peas.

A reception to the bridal couple was held at the home of Miss Mina Johnstone on 98 Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside in Edmonton following a brief wedding trip to the mountains.

Dual Problem Faces Canada Transit Units

TORONTO, June 15.—(CP)—Transit Controller George S. Gray told members of the Canadian Transit Association that public road transportation services this year are confronted with a dual problem—"How to get war workers to their jobs and home again, and how to conserve rubber and gasoline."

He warned that this is a "grim year" for the United Nations, grim for the ordinary man in the street as well as the man in uniform, and grim for those concerned with the task "of keeping Canada in motion even though the brakes of rubber, steel and oil shortages drag on our wheels."

He said the program of eliminating the curtailing interurban bus service where there was duplication with rail services and other bus facilities was proceeding. Most of the vehicles thus released have been swung over to direct war work.

DEMAND TO INCREASE

But it was doubtful whether "any considerable pool" of second-hand equipment could be built up by autumn. "The demand is likely to increase faster than the supply."

Mr. Gray added that the greatest demand will come in the heavily industrialized centres of war industry like Halifax, Saint John, N.B.; Quebec, Arvida, Que.; Montreal, Toronto, Hamilton, the Niagara peninsula, Windsor, Ont.; Sudbury, Ont.; Fort William, Winnipeg, Vancouver, Victoria, "and many others."

Canada was largely dependent upon American manufacturers for equipment. Last May 21 an official order in Washington placed all transit vehicles under allocation by the War Production Board.

He said "arrangements have been completed whereby the authorities at Washington will accept the recommendations of the transit controller as sufficient endorsement of purchases of busses for Canadian operations from United States manufacturers."

MAIN OBJECTIVE

One of the transit control's main objectives was to divert transit facilities from non-essential routes serving war industries.

"The necessity arises the general public must be prepared to adjust itself to unavoidable new conditions," Mr. Gray told the association. He warned that a huge increase of non-essential passenger travel on busses, resulting from restrictions on purchase of automobiles and on gasoline and tires by the pleasure driver, would defeat the objective of such restrictions.

"The phrase 'travel rationing' has been used more or less vaguely," Mr. Gray continued.

"One thing is certain, as greater and greater proportions of the travel now being handled by private cars is diverted to public transit, the facilities just won't carry everybody. We must assure that those who have reason to move are carried and that incidental and unessential riding is discouraged."

Curtailments already put into effect had meant these savings in bus miles to date: In British Columbia, 75,000; in the prairie provinces, 1,250,000; in Ontario, nearly 2,000,000; in Quebec, some 3,000,000; in the maritimes, 750,000.

"This is a total of well over 7,000,000 bus miles per year," Mr. Gray said. "It is a saving of thousands of pounds of rubber, and perhaps 1,000,000 gallons of gasoline."

Many Wounded In Two Clashes In Norway Towns

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—A Reuters dispatch from Stockholm reported today many persons were wounded in Norway in a battle between followers of Vidkun Quisling, pro-Nazi premier, and other Norwegians in the towns of Rissa and Selbu, near Trondheim.

Armed Quislingites were said to have entered the towns to "take reprisals" against the population but to have encountered fierce resistance.

Disturbances were reported also at Troendelag.

Made 100 Flights, Then Got Wings

Perhaps the only man in the R.C.A.F. to be so honored, Warrant Office 1, L. J. Taylor, 26, of Cannington, Ontario, (right), got the half wing of a gunner. He has served a year and a half overseas and took part in 100 flights over enemy territory, though he had never trained as a gunner. Taylor's service was termed "extraordinary" by officers at No. 1 Bombing and Gunnery school, Jarvis, where he got his wings. Taylor's job is that of armorer, not gunner. He is senior N.C.O. at No. 1 and has been in the R.C.A.F. six years. In 1940 he was senior N.C.O. of the 400th Canadian squadron, formerly the 110th squadron overseas. Wing Commander C. R. Lloyd, R.A.F., No. 1 training command (left) commended him. R.C.A.F. in 1940 did not have any more gunners than it needed. Taylor's job as armorer placed him in a position where he knew all about handling and setting up of plane's guns. He volunteered to get off the ground and into the air as a gunner.

Man's Heritage Assured, F.D.R. Informs Envoys

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, welcoming Mexico and the Philippines into the United Nations alliance against the Axis in a White House Flag Day ceremony yesterday asserted confidently that:

"We of the United Nations have the power and the men and the will at last to assure man's heritage."

He said the peoples of the United Nations are "taking the sword from the oppressors' hands," and with it "they will destroy those tyrants."

Prior to yesterday, 26 nations, including Great Britain, the United States, Canada, Russia and China had adhered to the "declaration by United Nations" of January 1 embracing the four freedoms of the Atlantic charter and pledging each signatory to use its full resources in the war and not to conclude a separate peace with the enemy.

TOTAL NOW 28

Adherence by Mexico and the Philippines brought the total to 28 nations and commonwealths.

Surrounded by Dr. Francisco Castillo Majera, the Mexican ambassador; President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine Commonwealth, and the diplomatic representatives of 25 other signatories, Mr. Roosevelt declared:

"Today the Republic of Mexico and the Commonwealth of the Philippine Islands joins us. We welcome these valiant peoples to the company of those who fight for freedom."

Mr. Roosevelt spoke to the diplomatic representatives in the state dining room of the White House, sitting at a table used by President Lincoln. The ambassadors and ministers of the governments allied against the Axis stood beside the flags of their countries forming a huge "V" on each side and to the rear of the president.

As the Mexican ambassador and President Quezon added their signatures to the "declaration of the United Nations," the president remarked:

"And may I add there is plenty of room for more signatures."

Asserting the four freedoms were the rights of men of every creed and race wherever they live—a "heritage, long withheld," the president said the people of the United Nations "know that their faith cannot be broken by any man or any force.

"And we know that there are other millions who in their silent captivity share our belief," he added.

Larger Bread Use Seen As Need To Offset Shortages

OTTAWA, June 15.—(CP)—Foods Administrator J. G. Taggart of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said in a speech here Saturday night that Canadians soon may be called upon to double their consumption of bread to offset shortages in their diet of meat and dairy products. Foreseeing larger exports of meat and dairy commodities to Great Britain, Mr. Taggart told the annual meeting of the Canadian Dietetic Association at a dinner that Canadians could look forward to further rationing.

Crossing Crash Claims 4 Lives

PEMBROKE, Ont., June 15.—(CP) Three people were killed instantly, a fourth died later of injuries and a fifth was severely injured when an automobile and a Canadian Pacific Railway train collided at a level crossing three miles east of here Saturday night.

The dead, all of Pembroke, are: Mrs. John Johnston, 70; Andrew A. Johnston, 31, her son; Mrs. Richard Smth, 68; Kathleen Bathgate, 11.

Mrs. Alex Bathgate, also of Pembroke, mother of Kathleen, was severely injured.

Andrew Johnston died in hospital here today from injuries suffered in the accident.

The car was proceeding over a private crossing when it was struck by the train. The impact carried the car 60 feet along the racks, turned it over three times and wrecked it.

Benes Promises Death To Nazis For Atrocities

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—Czecho-Slovak military law, including the death penalty, will be applied to all Nazis responsible for "bestial destruction and barren horror" in the Czecho-Slovak nation after the war, President Eduard Benes declared last night in a broadcast to his people from London.

He declared that on the first day of victory the policy of personal responsibility would be mercilessly carried out against "all exponents of the Nazi party and the Reich government on Czech territory, beginning with the former protector, Baron von Neurath, all leaders of the Gestapo and SS formations, and all Germans in the political and military administration of Bohemia and Moravia."

Court Upholds Conviction Of Medical Groups

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP)—The United States court of appeals today upheld the conviction of the American Medical Association and the Medical Society of the District of Columbia on charges of illegal restraint of trade in violation of the anti-trust laws.

The two organizations were convicted in district court last year of attempting to thwart the aims of Group Health Association, a cooperative of federal government employees.

Justice James Proctor fined the American Medical Association $3,500 and the District Society, $1,500.

INDIVIDUALS ACQUITTED

All individual defendants named in the indictments along with the two organizations were acquitted at the trial.

Discussing the contention of the organizations concerning their power to effect a reasonable regulation of the practice of medicine, the unanimous opinion of the appeal court said in part:

"The situation which confronts appellants, and they have sought to control, is not confined to the medical profession alone. Profound changes in social and economic conditions have forced members of all professional groups to make readjustment.

"The fact that these changes may result even in depriving professional people of opportunity formerly open to them does not justify or excuse their use of criminal methods to prevent changes or to destroy new institutions. Lawyers, too, have seen, during recent decades, large scale changes in their professional work. There was a time when lawyers worked entirely on fees or retainers, in particular cases and controversies; now many of them are salaried employees on the staff of large corporate industrial and financial organizations."

The doctors employed by the Group Health Association were salaried.

CHALLENGE ADEQUACY

At another point the court said: "Professions exist because the people believe they will be better served by licensing especially prepared experts to minister to their needs. The licensed monopolies which professions enjoy constitute, in themselves, severe restraints upon competition. But they are restraints which depend upon capacity and training, not special privileges. Neither do they justify concerted criminal action to prevent the people from developing new methods of serving their needs.

"The better educated laity of today questions the adequacy of present day medicine. Their challenge finds support . . . from substantial portions of the medical profession itself. The people give the privilege of professional monopoly and the people may take it away."

The court refused to set aside the verdict against the two organizations on the grounds it was inconsistent when it convicted them and acquitted the individual defendants, saying "complete identity of participation in the conspiracy was not necessary upon the part of the participants, either in fact or in law."

Gestapo Launches New Campaign In Paris "Red Belt"

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—Free French headquarters reported Saturday that the gestapo has launched a big new drive in Paris to quell organized resistance found particularly in the so-called "Red Belt" of working class districts around the city.

Confidential reports reaching London through unoccupied France were quoted as saying that there had been 91 arrests in the past seven days, and that "attacks on German military personnel have become virtually a daily occurrence."

(The Berlin radio said several van loads of youths had been rounded up last night in police raids on cafes along the Champs Elysees, and all who could not prove they had jobs faced conscription into labor services.)

Headquarters Of Paris Governor Damaged By Blast

BERLIN (From German Broadcasts), June 15.—(AP)—The Paris town hall where Charles Magny, the governor of Paris since the German occupation, has his quarters, was damaged by an explosion yesterday, and the whole district was immediately cordoned off.

Two persons were injured, said dispatches from Paris, but the extent of damage was not disclosed in a statement announcing the "bombing outrage."

Magny is a former director of the Surete Nationale, the French secret police.

Australian Airman Is Awarded D.S.O. For Brave Conduct

LONDON, June 15.—(CP)—Acting Wing Cmdr. D. C. T. Bennett, Australian member of the R.A.F. who led a bomber crew in its exciting and arduous escape into Sweden after bailing out over Norway, has been awarded the Distinguished Service Order, it was announced today.

Formerly flying superintendent of the Atlantic ferry organization, Bennett led the first formation delivery flight of American bombers to Britain.

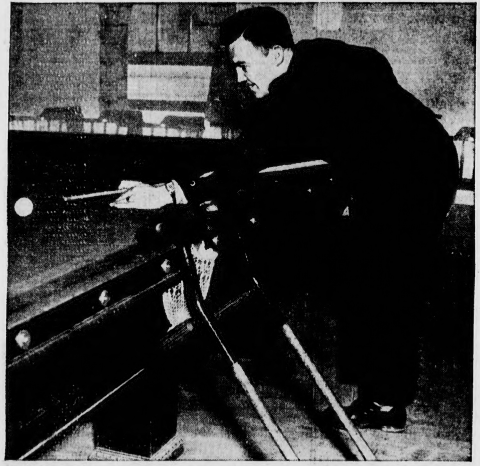
ENDLESS STREAM OF PLANES

Ferry Command Keeps 'Em Flying Across Atlantic

Head man of the Royal Air Force Ferry Command in Canada is Sir Frederick (Ginger) Bowhill, air chief marshal, whose command extends from Montreal to India. He has been in command ever since the R.A.F. took over control of the ferry business. His wife, also in Canada, is commanding officer of the Women's Auxiliary Air Force, cipher and code department.

Spread out on a huge field near Montreal are the bombers, ready for delivery to Britain. From all the big factories of the U.S. these planes are assembled in Montreal, then taken over by the R.A.F. Ferry Command. Most of these are two-motored bombers, but in the foreground are three of the big four-motored Liberators, one of which recently flew the Atlantic in six hours and 40 minutes.

R.C.A.F. Flier Inspired By Bader



The leg he left behind him is not worrying Sergeant-Pilot Keir MacLeod of Breadalbane, P.E.I., he says. His left foot was amputated above the ankle after it was injured in a bomber crash in England. Back in Canada and declared physically fit, Sgt. MacLeod is waiting at Rockcliffe Air Station, Ottawa, for permission to prove his ability to fly again. "If Wing Commander Bader can do it with two artificial legs I should be able to get along with one artificial foot," he insists.

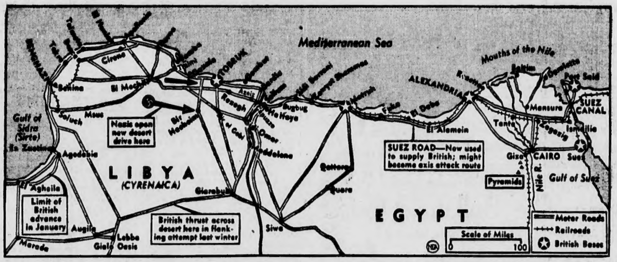
She's Popular!

Ann Sheridan is the service man's favorite antidote for loneliness, according to statistics which indicate that she has been elected, unofficially at least, as "the girl we'd most like to talk to on the telephone." Since the first of the year the Warner Bros.' star has talked to 39 service men, in all sections of the country who have succeeded in reaching her by telephone. One of Ann's telephone chats was a matter of official arrangement for a radio program, when work was stopped on Warners' "Wings for the Eagle" while the actress talked to several Coast Guard boys stationed at Ellis Island, New York Harbor, while millions of radio listeners heard.

Our Titanic Task In The Atlantic

Picture of plane and destroyer operating over long, lonely stretches of the Atlantic illustrates tremendous job we must accomplish to beat the U-boat menace. Bomber and destroyer are dropping depth charges after sighting a sub.

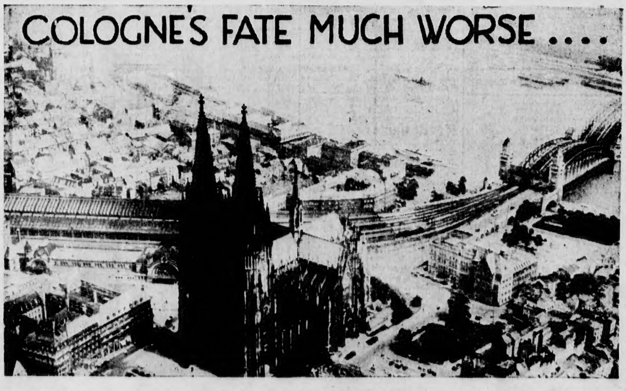
Shuttle Warfare In Shifting Libyan Sands

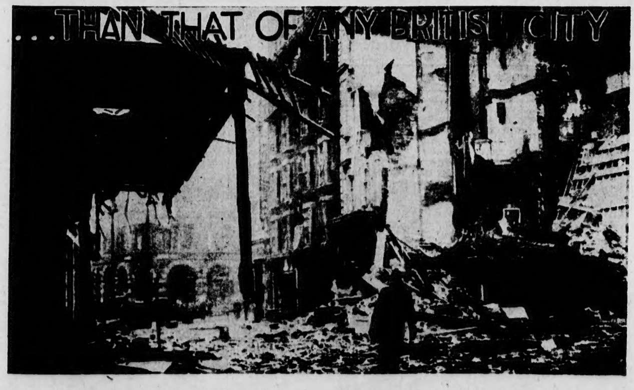


Shuttle warfare begins anew on the shifting sands of Libya with General Rommel's tanks and troops trying to strike again toward Suez. Map shows roads of this battle area and towns that have figured in previous desert clashes between British and Axis armies.

R.A.F. MORE THAN REPAYS NAZI BOMBINGS

German City's Fate Proves Prime Minister Churchill Excellent Prophet





Cologne was beautiful in pre-war days, but that was before the R.A.F. climaxed 107 raids on the city with the greatest of all time, when 1,250 planes dropped 6,000,000 pounds of bombs. This is the city as it was (left). Only the Germans know what it looks like since pasting. (Right) is British city after German bombing, but is nothing to Cologne today. Said Prime Minister Churchill at battered Bristol last year (April 12): "We will give it back to them." Two weeks later he told a bomb-scared, but defiant Manchester, "They will get it back threefold." An excellent prophet was Prime Minister Churchill. As a prophet Hitler is not in the same league. Said he on Sept. 9, 1939: "I shall see to it that no enemy plane shall drop its bombs on German soil.

CHAPTER XV

TALCOTT accepted the print and as he scanned it his bewilderment grew. The print was a copy of a creased and rather smudgy original. It was the head-and-shoulders likeness of a man in uniform, a Uhlan officer of the first World War. His head was closely shaved or bald. Under a bulging forehead his eyes held the fixed, glassy stare of unquestioned authority. His chin was short and square, his lips thin and cruel. He didn't look like Struthers; he didn't look like anybody Talcott could remember ever having seen.

"That's a photograph of Baron Gerhardt von Stampf," the slow, musical voice said. "A brilliant and unscrupulous agent. He speaks five languages as fluently and effortlessly as if each was his mother tongue. He was operating in Brazil until the recent shakeup there. We have reason to believe that he may be in the Islands."

"It certainly isn't Struthers," Talcott said.

"I don't like to think what a Nazi agent could do if firmly established nearby. We'll check on him thoroughly. And now," the cloudiness left his gray eyes as he turned to MacDowell, "you claim to be employed by the Standard Detective Agency, that your name is Patrick MacDowell and you are a resident of New York. You have your license?"

MacDowell was taken completely aback. He didn't recall having made any claims to this disconcerting individual; didn't remember that he had even opened his mouth. He fumbled through pockets and produced a card with photo attached, a motor vehicle permit and a few letters.

"These look all right. I want to know where you met Halsey and Struthers and what evidence you had as to their authenticity."

This man! How the devil did he know about Halsey when his name hadn't been mentioned? "Why, I met Halsey in Struthers' office. It was Struthers called the boss and asked for me. I worked with him before."

"Struthers was known to you?"

"Absolutely."

"And Halsey?"

"Halsey took me to Federal Chemical's offices. Right straight in to th' president's private secretary."

"And the secretary instructed you to arrest Talcott if the auditor requested it?"

"That's th' idea."

"You didn't talk to anyone else at Federal Chemical?"

"No."

The man at the desk frowned. "Talcott notified the company he was leaving; your call came from the auditor, not the company. "A man whom you had just met in the auditor's office took you to the secretary. Have you any evidence that Halsey is actually an employee of Federal Chemical?"

MacDowell gasped "Huh? What more would you expect? He took me right in!"

"Anybody can go right in if they have got clearance," the gray-eyed man smiled faintly. He turned to Talcott. "Did you know Halsey before?"

"Only through letters."

"Which could have been sent without the knowledge of the president. This may be a conspiracy to defraud the company, or—" He paused, searched through his drawer again, found a blue sheet. He said, "You operate a distillation plant for the production of nitric acid. How much oil does it consume?"

"About a barrel a day."

"How much stock do you ordinarily carry?"

"Two months' supply."

"Any idea why Struthers would order five hundred barrels to be shipped immediately?"

Talcott lifted his eyebrows. "Five hundred barrels! Not unless he was afraid priorities would shut off his supply."

The man at the desk shut himself behind his eyes. One, two, three minutes passed in which his fingers drummed restlessly. Then, sighing, he said, "We'll watch it. And I suggest that you watch yourself. There can be only two possible answers to the auditor's conduct. I'm rather hoping, for the sake of all of us, that he's trying to take the company for a ride. Good luck, Bill."

* * *

"How'd that guy know about me?" MacDowell demanded when they again faced Emancipation Park. "What did he ask all them questions for? How'd he know about Halsey? Nobody said nothing to him about Halsey, not unless you got to him while I was asleep. And who is he anyway?"

Talcott grinned. "I'm beginning to understand why Struthers picked you for this job."

"Huh? And what's how much oil use got to do with all this, I'd like ta know."

"If I knew all the answers I wouldn't be going back with you."

MacDowell lapsed to muttering. It sure was mysterious. Walk up an alley and climb a flight of stairs and there, in a little room 600 miles from home, was a guy who knew all about you. Who knew all about Halsey before his name was even mentioned. A guy who asked dumb questions about how many barrels of oil it took to run a still. A guy who talked about international intrigue; as if anybody would want to get control of a stinking, desolate hunk of rock like Abas Island.

Suddenly a look of positive brilliance burst from MacDowell's face. "Hey! That guy!" he gasped. "That guy is a—"

But Talcott, was yards away striding toward the waterfront. Briskly heading for a crowd gathered on the quay, a group of natives and tourists and shopkeepers and sailors. The crowd was growing in volume. People were running to it across the small park; running men brushed past MacDowell.

Down there a woman screamed; the crowd bulged and parted momentarily and MacDowell saw a uniformed officer pushing them back from the launch that belonged to Federal Chemical Company's Plant Number Six. Another uniformed officer was in the launch, bending down. Well, maybe the cops could tell him something. Maybe they could tell him about the guy in the room that knew so much.

He had to sun to keep up to Talcott. When they reached the crowd he saw that the people in it were scared. They were staring at the launch and the bent-down officer, jostling each other in their effort to see.

Beneath its tan, Talcott's face was white as milk. "What's wrong here" he demanded so sharply that the officer looked up.

"This your boat?" the officer demanded.

"I'm in charge of it."

"Then you're the one we want. Walter, take the gentleman over to the Fort."

The officer stood up, and MacDowell, crowding close, saw Sebastien. Stretched out in the bottom, he was, his bandaged arm covering his face. Beneath the blade of his left shoulder was a glistening dark stain from which a knife-handle protruded.

Hitler Paralyzed By News Of Death Of Herr Heydrich

LONDON, June 15.—(BUP)—Radio Kuibyshev said today that the assassination of Reinhardt Heydrich has caused Adolf Hitler to collapse.

Hitler was paralyzed by the news, Radio Kuibyshev said, quoting Stockholm reports. He lay in his room for two days, not moving and refusing to see any one. Recovering his wits in a rage, he ordered the gestapo purged for having failed to provide for Heydrich's safety and demanded that the Czech intellectual class be exterminated, Radio Kuibyshev said.

Heydrich, the gestapo's No. 2 man and hangman, was one of Hitler's favorites.

Post-War Plan Rehabilitation Is Needed Now

In addition to unemployment insurance the Dominion government must initiate a post-war construction plan similar to the PWA in the United States to meet the rehabilitation of men of the armed services and those employed in war industry, Dr. Harry M. Cassidy, professor of Social welfare, University of California, Berkeley, California, stated Monday on his arrival here in the course of survey of provincial and municipal social service administration throughout Canada.

Dr. Cassidy, who is accompanied by Mrs. Cassidy, is making the survey to gather material for a book on post-war social service problems.

WILL ADDRESS MEETING

During his stay here he will confer with social service officers of the provincial and municipal governments. He will address a meeting of the Edmonton Council of Social Agencies at the Corona hotel on Tuesday evening.

The problem of rehabilitation of men of the fighting services and war industry is too large for the municipal and provincial authorities to handle; it must be a Dominion undertaking, if there is not to be a recurrence of the social upheaval which followed in the war of the economic depression, Dr. Cassidy stated.

Municipal and provincial governments are not equipped, either financially or otherwise, to carry through the program which will be necessary to absorb men and women in industry in the post-war period, he said.

There must be planning now, to provide work for all grades of labor as it is released from war industry and the armed services. The nation cannot afford to have another period such as the relief years 1929 to 1936, when municipalities throughout Canada went bankrupt in a vain attempt to provide for the unemployed.

He said there was considerable planning being done in the United States, and also that Canada had established a committee under Dr. Cyril Jones, McGill university, to study the post-war problems and recommend ways and means of meeting the post-war rehabilitation period.

Salvage Drive Will Commence Garneau Area

Organized and systematic picking up of salvage materials collected by housewives of the Garneau community will commence Tuesday morning, James Layton, manager of the campaign, stated Monday.

Garneau community was the first community to organize salvage work and commencing Tuesday will be used as a test community, Mr. Layton stated.

Housewives have been asked to place their salvage supplies along the curb, properly bundled and sorted. A fleet of salvage trucks will make periodic calls to pick up the supplies and deliver them to the main depot.

If this method proves successful in Garneau, it will then be instituted throughout the whole city as soon as the facilities are brought up to full strength.

Another truck was added to the fleet to bring the total to five. Two more will be added in a few days, Mr. Layton stated.

Police Receive Reports Thefts Over Week-End

Out of 13 reports on week end occurrences attended to by city detectives, 12 were theft cases involving everything from opera glasses to the removal of a man's clothing.

Theft of money was reported in three cases. A wallet containing $25 was taken from a city dance hall Saturday night, a purse containing $27.50 was lifted from a chair in a departmental store Saturday afternoon, and a pocket book containing $15 was picked out of a man's pocket as he was sitting at a lunch counter Saturday night.

A man under the influence of liquor was stripped of all his clothing which was then thrown behind a hotel.

A citizen lost his week end supply of liquor out of his car and a lady dancer lost her glasses when her purse was lifted from a dance hall.

A parcel containing a pair of women's shoes vanished from a pastry counter in a departmental store Saturday afternoon.

Addresses Club

Rev. T. B. McDormand, secretary of young people's work for the Baptist Union of western Canada, who addressed members of the Edmonton Kiwanis club on "Christianity and Today's Youth," Monday.

Church Seeks To Help Youth In World Order

The Christian Church seeks to give today's youth a standard of values and a type of attitude which shall fit them for a creative contribution to a new world order, Rev. T. B. McDormand, secretary of young people's work for the Baptist Union of Western Canada, told members of the Edmonton Kiwanis Club at their regular meeting at the Macdonald hotel, Monday noon.

Rev. McDormand spoke on "Christianity and Today's Youth". He stated that for a better future the people of the Allied Nations must recognize the soundness of Hitler's psychology regarding youth development.

In his plans for a Germanic Europe, Hitler recognized the necessity of shaping the thought of German youth and directing their loyalty, he said.

A better world will evolve not only along economic and political lines but on the lines of improvement of relationships between people and groups of people, he said.

"Apart from the creation of personality we shall exercise with consistency such qualities as tolerance, disinterested loyalty to right and opposition to wrong, and so on," Mr. McDormand stated.

That is the aim of Christianity towards youth today. The new world order shall depend not only upon science and technology alone, but upon the highest functioning of human character.

In conclusion he said that the task of churches is not to save civilization as it is, but to build a civilization that shall deserve to endure.

Organization Of Repair Workers Gains Impetus

Organization meeting of 500 workers of the Aircraft Repair depot took place Sunday afternoon at the Canadian Legion Memorial hall.

Speakers who addressed the meeting were Alfred Farmilo, president of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council; D. S. Lyons of Montreal, international vice-president of the International Association of Machinists; Carl E. Berg, general organizer and representative of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and A. Full co-operation of the Trades and Labor Council of Canada was assured the workers who, it was said, are carrying on one of the most important phases of trade work in Canada.

Organization plans were presented to the meeting for consideration, and the meeting adjourned until the workers agree upon what action they will take in the matter of a detailed set-up.

13 Allied Vessels Sunk In Atlantic During Last Week

By The Canadian Press

The loss of 13 merchant ships in the western Atlantic, anounced during last week, swelled the toll of Allied and neutral shipping taken by enemy U-boats in that area to 264 craft.

More than 365 crewmen and passengers in last week's reported attacks were rescued. Sixteen lives were lost and 61 were reported missing.

The officially disclosed sinkings last week included seven United States ships, two British, one Norwegian, one Brazilian, one Swedish and one unidentified Allied.

Joins Air Force

Son of a widely-known political leader in western Canada and a school teacher for some time on the staff of the Alexander school at Wetaskiwin, Harry Charles Irvine has joined the R.C.A.F. as a wireless operator air gunner.

The airman recruit is the son of William Irvine, provincial organizer for the Alberta Farmer-Labor C.C.F. party. Mr. William Irvine was former member of parliament for Wetaskiwin.

Large Tungsten Production Is Forecast Here

Sufficient tungsten concentrates will be mined this year in the North West Territories to harden the steel for 25,000 tanks, Marcel Manolovici, Montreal mining operator, stated Saturday as he left Edmonton for Yellowknife to head an exploration party in the Doubling Lake area 75 miles north of Yellowknife.

He said that plans were now being considered under which all known finds of tungsten in the Yellowknife area would be pooled and the production milled in a 25-ton mill now being erected by William McDonald, Edmonton mining engineer, in the Gilmore Lake district.

Mr. Manolovici said the pooling of tungsten resources would be undertaken as a patriotic measure and would be operated without profit to ensure supply of tungsten which is so essential to the nation's war effort.

A former representative of British interests in Rumania, he headed an exploration party into the Gilmore lake area last year and made four important tungsten discoveries. He left Rumania in 1939 just before that country just threw in her lot with the Axis.

So essential is tungsten to the war effort, he said that the smallest quantities will be mined, even if such mining necessitated the picking up of the tungsten fabrics by hand.

He disclosed that Dr. Robert Folinsbee, Edmonton, in association with Dr. A. W. Jollife, Ottawa, both geologists, had invented an assayer which automatically assayed the quantities of tungsten in a discovery thus eliminating the tedious and costly trenching and drilling usually associated with the proving of mineral finds.

He revealed also that the mining for tungsten was conducted through the use of ultra violet ray lamps, the beam of which revealed the presence of the valuable metal.

Six to eight men will be in the exploration party headed by Mr. Manolovici, the head prospectors being Dave Foster of Winnipeg, and Thomas O'Brien, Yellowknife, who were with him in his survey work last year.

30 Tons Scrap Rubber Heading Toward Toronto

More than 30 tons of scrap rubber is on the way to a Toronto firm from the town of Westlock, according to Edward C. Fisher, Alberta organizer of the national salvage campaign, who returned at the week-end from the northern part of the province.

Mr. Fisher reports that with spring work nearly completed the campaign in rural areas and in small towns is gradually gaining momentum.

Barrhead reports that a carload of rubber is now in process of loading and Camrose has a carload ready for shipment. Fort Saskatchewan school children collected 480 tires in a recent drive, Mr. Fisher reported.

Both Barrhead and Westlock organized permanent committees during Mr. Fisher's visit last week with the Canadian Legion sponsoring the campaign at Westlock and the chamber of commerce organizing itself behind the drive at Barrhead.

ON RUBBER DRIVE

Both towns are at present concentrating on the rubber drive and expect to turn to metal collections as soon as the rubber supply has been exhausted, Mr. Fisher stated.

Consumers Protest "Floor" Milk Prices

Resolution protesting against the "floor" on milk prices in Alberta, and a request for its immediate removal, unanimously passed by the Consumers' League of Edmonton has been forwarded to Donald Gordon, chairman, War Time Prices and Trade Board, Ottawa.

It was pointed out in the communication to Mr. Gordon that the maximum and minimum prices were fixed at the same level—12 cents a quart—and it was asked in the interests of national health and nutrition that all artificial barriers to the abundant production of milk and the lowering of the price of the commodity should be abolished immediately.

The League pointed out that the policy of the board in respect to other foods and commodities was to establish a maximum beyond which a retailer could not charge, but gave complete freedom to charge any price below that maximum.

Single Blaze Mars Perfect Week-End For Fire-Fighters

One outside fire that was under control before the firecar arrived was all that stood in the way of a perfect week-end for the city fire department. The fire for which the alarm was turned in was set by boys playing in a vacant lot but was put out before the firemen arrived. That was the only call in the city since Saturday morning.

Girl Cyclists, Motorist Hurt Over Week-End

A light week-end toll of five accidents sent one motorist to a hospital and injured two girl cyclists, according to police traffic records.

In attempting to avoid hitting a girl cyclist, Frank O'Brien of the Sterling Collieries, crashed his car headlong into the fence of the Edmonton Junk Co., at 8:40 p.m. Saturday.

O'Brien gashed his lips against the steering wheel and was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital where he was detained for the night.

FELL TO PAVEMENT

The girl, Yvonne Germain, 10310 96 street, was not struck but fell to the pavement and suffered slight injuries to the left arm and hip.

The police report revealed that the girl swerved suddenly in front of O'Brien's auto as he was driving toward 97 street on 102A avenue.

Olga Kushnerk, 9327 106A avenue, was thrown off her bicycle at the intersection of 101 street and 100 avenue at 8:30 p.m. Saturday. Miss Kushnerk suffered a bruised thigh and an injured left knee. Driver of the auto was K. A. MacKenzie, St. Joseph's College. The cyclist did not require medical attention.

BUMPERS LOCKED

E. L. Taylor, Calgary, drove down Jasper avenue in tandem formation with another car that had its bumper hooked to the rear bumper of his car. He drove away from opposite the Corona hotel and did not know of the trailing car till he stopped at 109 street. Damage to the trailing car belonging to Raymond Moorey, Balmoral block was slight.

The remaining two accidents resulted in no injuries and only slight damage to the vehicles involved. One occurred at the intersection of Stony Plain road and 149 street when a car attempting to turn off the main road was struck from the rear by an oncoming auto. A street car is reported to have backed into a standing auto in the fifth accident of the week-end.

Getting Around

of each other. United States dive bombers from carriers and shore-based long range bombers sank more enemy naval craft and transports than has ever been sunk in this war before in one engagement. And in the long series of attacks and counter-attacks not a single shell from a warship's gun in either fleet found a target on ships of the opposing fleet.

He has contended over and over again that the most powerful naval fleets in the world will never be able to again attack hostile shores where there are strong aviation concentrations, except where there is the element of complete surprise.

Admiral Nimitz, hero of the victorious Midway battle, confirms this. In paying high tribute to the work of the U.S. bombers in the smashing of the Japanese invasion fleet, Admiral Nimitz stated the destruction wrought against the Jap sea units proved it would not be prudent for the U.S. navy to venture too close to enemy shores where there are heavy bombing planes.

In the meagre reports about Japanese activity in the Alutians, it should be noted the landings were made under the cover of heavy fogs.

U.S. headquarters reported it had been impossible to see from the air what was going on for several days.

Seversky has consistently advocated the construction of long range bombers that could bomb Japan direct from Alaskan bases. It seems more than likely that the final offensive against Japan will have to be made in this way.
